FELL UNDER ENGINE TENDER

Sad Accident That Befell Conductor William Daley.

EARLY FRIDAY MORNING

While at Work in Yard at the Nittany Furnace—Both Legs Have Been Amputated.

NOW AT THE BELLEFONTE HOSPITAL.

William Daley, conductor on the yard engine at the Nittany Furnace met with a serious accident early Friday morning which will terribly cripple him and may cost him his life.

Mr. Daley had the night shift and about four o'clock Friday morning the train was backing slowly into the cinder pit to take out a car of cinder. Conductor Daley was on the tender and when just above the frog leading into the siding, he jumped off to make a coupling and in doing so slipped and fell on the track the tender passing over his legs. No one saw the accident happen and the first warning the crew had that anything was wrong was when the engineer saw Mr. Daley along the side of the track. They were running slow and he stopped the engine instantly. The unfortunate man was taken to the Bellefonte Hospital where every attention possible was given him.

It was found that both legs were crushed, and had to be amputated.

Mr. Daley's condition is quite serious but it is believed that he will recover.

Conductor Daley is a man about 45 years of age, has a wife and four children and lives on East Lamb street. He has been railroading for many years. He has been employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, the Central railroad of Pennsylvania and now by the Nittany Furnace Co.

The train crew of which Mr. Daley was in charge at the time the accident happened is composed of Jas. Miller, Jr., engineer, Wm. Peters, fireman, and Bruce Peters, brakeman.. The engine was No. 1, the tank of which passed over Mr. Daley's limbs.

JOS. L. NEFF INJURED.

Struck by Train at Roland—Now at Bellefonte Hospital.

Joseph L. Neff, the auctioneer, one of the best known men in Centre county, was struck by a train at Curtins Works Saturday at 8 o'clock while driving across the railroad track, and sustained injuries of a very serious character. He was brought to the Bellefonte Hospital on the afternoon train.

Mr. Neff's home is near Roland and Saturday morning he started to drive to Unionville where he was scheduled to cry a sale. Mr. Neff is hard of hearing and besides had the curtains on his buggy drawn down. Just as he crossed the track at Curtin's Works the work train came dashing along striking the buggy and carrying it a distance of 200 feet. The buggy was smashed to kindling wood and the horse killed. Mr. Neff was picked up along the railroad track in an unconscious condition. Blood was ozing from his nose and mouth and when he regained consciousness he complained of a terrible pain in his chest.

His left shoulder is broken and he is probably injured internally.

Mr. Neff's many friends all over the county will learn with extreme regret of the serious accident which befell him.

Shot Two Deer.

A jolly crowd of Bellefonte hunters are now encamped at the head of Eddy's Lick in the Allegheny Mountains. A letter received from one of the party states that they have killed two deer already.

The party is composed as follows: John Knisely, W. C. Cassidy, Roger Brouse, Linn McGinley, Maurie Jackson, Harry Gerberich, Bruce Garman, of this place, and Andy Knisely of Shamokin.

Lew Gettig and Jack Decker left today for Eddy's Lick to join the party.

Jacob Jury and Paul McGarvey are cooking for the party and Bob Mann, of Romola, is their guide.

Suppress Outside Resorts.

Two items of news appeared in the San Francisco daily papers last week, both, no doubt, interesting to liquor dealers and more or less disgusting to temperance people. The first consisted of a report from General C. B. Burton, inspector general of the army, upon the canteen question. The following quotation from the report, which was made to the Secretary of War, is put forth as the decision of General Burton: "It seems to be almost the unanimous estimate of the army that the one thing lacking to meet the soldier's wants and tastes is the canteen feature. The absence of this leads to sickness, the commission of military offensee, desertion and other crimes, as well as the impaired discipline, by driving men to resort to the low dives and groggeries that have sprung up like mushrooms around military reservations since the prohibition law was enacted. In fact, the canteen feature is not only a benefit morally, but the profits derived from the sale of beer and light wines are used to improve the mess, as well as for the purchase of periodicals, publications, etc., all of which add to the soldier's comfort and contentment."

What answer can those who have opposed the canteen business make to this report? First, that the suppression of the canteen because thousands of people believe it to be a great evil furnishes a strong presumption at least that the reports mentioned in the general's report could also be suppressed. The commission of military offences, desertion and impaired discipline to which the soldiers are led to visiting dives and groggeries were also suppressed. And as to the sickness caused by the absence of the canteen, the presumption is that any well organized army is supplied with intelligent physicians who could prescribe spirits as any other medicine is prescribed when spirits is the remedy needed.—Pacific Christian.

No one evil agent so much obstructs this army in its progress to that condition which will enable it to accomplish all that true soldiers can, as the degrading vice of drunkenness. It is the cause of by far the greater part of the disorders which are examined by courts martial. It is impossible to estimate the benefits that would accrue to the service from the adoption of a resolution on the part of the officers to set their men an example of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks. It would be worth fifty thousand men to the armies of the United States.—General McClellan in 1862.

A Water Famine at Altoona.

The possibility of the supply of water being exhausted in the two reservoirs at Kittanning Point in less than a month unless there should be a fall of rain to fill them up, makes the water situation in Altoona a very grave one, and even heroic measures are being resorted to so that when the crisis comes it may be met. An effort in progress for some time to secure a water option from H. T. Shillingford, reputed owner of the Tipton Coal Co., land at Tipton, through which the Tipton run passes, having failed, the Altoona board of water commissioners by authority of councils and advices of the city solicitor, proceeded to a point well up the run on Saturday with a force of men, pipe, valves, etc., and succeeded in building a dam and securing a flow of water through a pipe. But the serving of an injunction on the Altoona water authorities by the agent of the Tipton Water company, who claim to have the exclusive right of the water in Tipton run, and of another by the Pennsylvania Railroad authorities, who claim that that corporation has the sole water right, makes a mixup of a matter that will take some time to straighten out. In the meantime the water question in the city of Altoona is becoming more desperate, and just what the city will do if it gets no relief by the fall of rain or water from some other source than its reservoir at Kittanning Point, is a question that the wisest of her citizens may not be able to solve.

A Loving Cup.

Last week J. S. McCargar was at Pittsburg and came back with a large silver "loving cup" awarded him by the Pittsburg agency of the Equitable Life Insurance company for securing the largest amount of business during the month of September. The trophy is on exhibition at Blair's jewelry store, this place, and is much admired. Mac. has a right to feel proud of it and we congratulate him upon the success he has made in his insurance work in this field. He is a hustler and has a good company.

A BRILLIANT NUPTIAL EVENT

Charles E. Dorworth, of Philadelphia, Weds Miss Crider, of Bellefonte.

AT CRIDER RESIDENCE

Wednesday Evening at 7 O'clock.—Reception Followed at 8 O'clock.—Beautiful Decorations and Costly Presents.

MANY GUESTS FROM A DISTANCE.

Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Fountain W. Crider on West Linn street was the scene of a brilliant nuptial event which united in holy bonds of wedlock their eldest daughter, Miss May Sullivan Crider and Mr. Charles Edwin Dorworth of Philadelphia, eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Dorworth, of this place.

The decorations for the event consisted of chrysanthemums, smilax and palms tastefully arranged throughout the parlor, hall, library and dining room.

The ceremony was performed in the library in the presence of the immediate familes and a few invited guests, by Rev. J. A. Wood, Jr., of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Wm. Laurie, of the Presbyterian church. Promptly at the appointed hour the bridal party entered the library to the music of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Nancy Cartright, of Beverly, New Jersey. First came the groom and his best man his brother, William J. Dorworth, of Schenectady, N. Y., then came the maid of honor, the sister of the bride, Miss Mary Crider and lastly the bride leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. F. W. Crider. The words which united them in marriage were soon said and congratulations followed.

The bride looked very beautiful attired in a costume of white chiffon and duchess lace with tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lillies of the valley and maiden hair fern.

The groom's gift to the bride was a fleur-de-lis pin set with pearls and diamonds.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Isabel Crider, looked very pretty and attractive in a gown of point-de-sprit. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

At 8 o'clock a brilliant reception was held at which a large number of guests were in attendance. The receiving party was composed of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crider and Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Dorworth. As a social function it was a splendid success and will be long remembered by those who were present.

The presents received by the bride were many, beautiful and costly and were indicative of the high regard and esteem in which she is held by all so fortunate as to be numbered among her friends and acquaintances.

The groom, Charles E. Dorworth, is a born and bred Bellefonter and his many friends are proud of the success which has followed him in his chosen profession as a newspaper man. Starting as local editor of the Bellefonte Republican at a small salary, he is now a political writer on the Philadelphia Press a position of responsibility and requiring a high degree of talent. That he is filling the bill satisfactorily is amply proved by the large number of newspaper friends he has made while in the city. A special Pullman car filled with newspaper men from Philadelphia and Pittsburg attended the wedding.

At 10 o'clock the wedding party left Bellefonte in the Pullman car "Pocatello" for Tyrone from which place the bride and groom proceeded on their wedding journey to Washington, D. C., and other points in the south while the newspaper men returned to Philadelphia.

There were a large number of guests here for the nuptial event among them being a large delegation of newspaper friends of Mr. Dorworth from Philadelphia and Pittsburg. The party left Philadelphia Tuesday night at 11:40 o'clock in the Pullman car "Pocatello" and arrived here at 9:28 Wednesday morning.

Those from Philadelphia are W. W. Long, city editor; W. G. Weart, S. R. Kirkpatrick, Wm. R. D. Hall, all of the Philadelphia Press; George J. Brennen, of the Inquirer; Peter J. Hoban and C. R. Michael, of the Public Ledger, and Chas. L. Hopkins, district passenger agent of the Southern railroad, and Peter J. Bolger, of the Record.

At Tyrone the party was joined by Max G. Leslie, Republican City Chairman of Pittsburg; Morgan E. Gable, editor of the Pittsburg Times; Fred W. Edwards, ex-register and present surveyor of Customs of Pittsburg; L. W. Strayer, Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Gazette.

Other guests present from a distance were:

Mr. Chas. Henderson, Montgomery, Pa.; the Misses Henderson, Montgomery, Pa.; Miss Burrows, Williamsport; Caleb North, Washington, D. C.; Miss Elizabeth North, Miss Nancy Cartright, Beverly, N. J.; Chas. Cochran, Williamsport; Mrs. Mary M. Jacobs, Seattle, Wash.; George Jacobs, Seattle, Wash.; John Jenkins, Milton; Miss Annie Jenkins, Milton; Miss Grace Jenkins and David Jenkins, Steelton, Pa.

AT NITTANY COUNTRY CLUB.

At 10:45 a. m. Wednesday a special train over the Central railroad conveyed the newspaper guests, local newspaper men and a few invited guests to Hecla Park, where the groom celebrated the ending of his bachelor days by giving a "Stag" party at the Nittany Country Club. A delightful old-fashioned dinner was served at 2 o'clock and the party returned to Bellefonte at 4 p. m. to prepare for the nuptial event of the evening.

CATAMOUNTS AND FOXES.

Destroy More Deer and Pheasants than the Stringent Laws Save.

A Beech Creek writer for the Lock Haven Express calls attention to a matter that will interest hunters of this region well as those at the further end of the Bald Eagle valley. He says the great number of deer killed during the season of last year is not alone responsible for the scarcity of this game at the present time. While a good many deer have been killed in the mountains of Clinton and Centre counties along the Beech creek, and in the Big run and Scootac regions this season, yet the number is not as large by half as that of a year ago, although the number of hunters in these districts is larger than ever. It is estimated that there are at at least ten hunters in the woods for every one deer that has been killed, on an average.

The deer killed in a season by hunters probably do not equal by a considerable number the annual increase. Hunters and woodsmen are convinced that the real enemy of the deer is not the hunter, but the wild cats and other carnivorous animals. A fawn found by a party of hunters is but one instance of the deadly work done by the wild cats. The remains of two deer were found by hunters in the big run region which had been eaten by wild cats, killed either by the latter or wounded first by bullets. It is believed that the wild cats kill more young deer, particularly fawns, than is ever known or even realized. These cats have increased very rapidly the past few years. After the law was passed prohibiting the running of deer with dogs, a great amount of poison in meat was put out to kill dogs that were running deer contrary to law. The wild cats and foxes got this and hundreds of them were poisoned and died.

This practice has ceased almost entirely and the wild cats and foxes have consequently increased. Evidence of their presence in large numbers can be seen. As a result pheasants have become almost extinct in the mountains where wild cats and foxes abound. A quail is hardly to be found at any time of the year in those districts. The bounty on foxes, wild cats and catamounts is not sufficient to repay men to go out there and set traps to catch them. Poison scattered throughout the region during the severe winter months and early spring would do more to kill these carnivorous animals and protect the deer than all the stringent laws the state legislative bodies may pass.

NOVEMBER TERM OF COURT

Convened Monday Morning With Judge Love Presiding.

FEW IMPORTANT CASES

H. E. Zimmerman, of Benner Township, Chosen Foreman of the Grand Jury.—There Will be no Second Week of Court and Jurors are Not to Appear

REPORTED BY W. HARRISON WALKER

The regular term of November court convened at ten o'clock Monday morning with Hon. John G. Love, president judge on the bench and Prothonotary Gardner and Register Archey in their respective places. Court stenographer S. C. Burrows, Esq., of Sunbury, arrived on the forenoon train and took his place in the court room.

The forenoon session was taken up in the presentation of motions and petitions by the several members of the bar.

The constables made their usual quarterly returns to the court, after which the members summoned to appear as Grand Jurors were called and after the court had selected H. E. Zimmerman, farmer, from Benner township, as foreman, they received their usual instructive charge from his Honor, Judge Love.

The first case called for trial was that of the Harrisburg Grocery and Produce Co., versus C. P. Long. After the jury was sworn court adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday. When court was called Monday afternoon the parties had made a settlement of this case and the jury was withdrawn.

The following cases were marked settled on the first week's list:

Dr. J. L. Seibert vs William R. Bartley. Appeal. Plea, non assumpsit,

Chas. L. Brown, receiver of the Q. C. M. F. I. Co., versus Sarah Homan. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

Same plaintiff, versus Jackson Kline. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

The following cases were marked continued on the first week's lists:

Exr's of J. D. Shugert vs Lewis Rosenthal. Appeal, plea non assumpsit.

J. H. Lingle vs Lewis Rosenthal. Appeal, plea non assumpsit.

William G. Frantz vs Rush Twp. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

J. H. Weber vs George Gentzel. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

H. B. Wright vs Joseph Diehl. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

Montgomery & Co. vs M. W. Cowdrick. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit,

Joseph Bros. & Co. vs M. W. Cowdrick. Appeal, plea, non assumpsit.

Quite a number of cases in which Chas. L. Brown, the receiver for the Quaker City Mutual Fire Insurance Co., is plaintiff, has been continued. Some will be tried while other may be settled.

On calling over the list of cases for trial for the second week of court commencing Monday, Dec. 5th, 1904, it was found that the cases would be continued after which the court announced that the sheriff of the county should notify all parties summoned to appear as jurymen to remain at home. There will be no second week of November court.

Commonwealth versus William and John Gilliland and Jacob Jackson. These defendants were charged with crime of larceny by George Dale. From the facts in this case, it appeared that some time last July some one broke a lock on the house containing the meat of Mr. Dale, and stole several pieces. Mr. Dale testified simply to the effect that the meat was stolen, but that he did not know who broke the lock, or anything further at the time. In support of the prosecution, they called a blacksmith from Lemont as a witness, who testified that the same afternoon he shod one of the horses belonging to the defendants, and that upon examination of the footprints left in and around the residence of Mr. Dale, they corresponded exactly to one of the horses driven by these defendants. They then called a constable who testified that he went to the house of one of the defendants and found several pieces of meat which afterwards were identified by Mr. Dale and his daughter to be the meat stolen. The defendants contended that they were not at Mr. Dale's at that time; that they had driven from State College to Lemont and had the horse shod as testified to by the prosecutor as well as by the blacksmith, and that after that they got into their wagon and drove down as far as Riebel's hill on the Boalsburg pike, and then turned around and went home. They gave as their reason for turning around on the hill that they were simply trying to find out whether one of their horses was all right or not. They also called a witness who testified that he saw somebody in a covered wagon at Mr. Dale's about eleven o'clock on the same night, but could not identify the person. The jury rendered a verdict of guilty. Sentence of the court has not as yet been pronounced.

Earl Freeman of Bellefonte, who was charged with the crime of larceny by C. W. Smith, prosecutor, entered a plea of guilty.

In the case of Commonwealth versus Craig C. Grassmire, who was charged by his wife with desertion, considerable testimony was taken. From the evidence it appeared that the defendant could not pay his taxes on his property, and that by reason thereof he was sold out, at which time Mrs. Grassmire left her home and went to the home of her parents near Roland. She testified that Mr Grassmire had some very bad habits and that he refused to support her, and that she was compelled to do something to make a living. The defendant admitted that he had some faults, but that on account of being out of work, he could not hand over as much cash as was required of him but that he tried to support his wife and family to the best of his ability. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, but directed the defendant to pay all the costs in the case.

In the case of Commonwealth versus Charles Hardy, it appeared that some months ago he and Thomas Gilson, the prosecutor, were in Philipsburg, drank freely at the hotel of that place, when at one bar the prosecutor pulled out twenty dollars in money and his gold watch. He testified that this defendant took the watch and money, after which they started to the train to go to Houtzdale, but between the Potter House and the station the defendant left the prosecutor, and after that could not be found for some time. The defendant alleged that the prosecutor was very drunk, and that he also handed him the money and watch, and that it was his opinion that he must have lost it. He swore positively to this fact, but the jury after some consideration of the case, returned a verdict of guilty, and recommended the mercy of the court.

FATAL WRECK.

Three Engines Crash Together—Two Men Killed, One Hurt.

A wreck occurred at McGarvey's station, just west of Altoona, shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday evening, resulting in the instant death of L. C. Shade, a fireman, and J. W. Coxey, a clerk at the station. John Clark, engineer, and George Clapper, aged 15 years, were injured. Clark was severely cut and bruised about the face and body, and Clapper's left foot was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary, and he was badly burned about the legs and trunk and his skull possibly fractured. Three engines were involved in the wreck, two of them coming together on the same track with a crash, and the third pushing into the mass of wreckage. The four men were all on the one engine. Clark and Clapper were thrown to one side, but Shade and Coxey were buried under the wreckage.

Coxey was a native of Centre county and was 22 years old. He lived near McGarvey and leaves a wife and a 3-month-old baby. Young Clapper is a brother of Mrs. Coxey. The boy had eaten Thanksgiving dinner with his sister and brother-in-law and they were going to work in the evening when the wreck occurred. Fireman Shade was aged about 27 years old and was married only last May. Young Clapper's home is in Altoona. He is a caller.

Winburne's New Bank Building.

On Wednesday morning last the Bituminous National bank of Winburne moved into and opened up and are doing business in their handsome edifice at that place. Both President Sommerville and cashier J. Malcolm Laurie, two of the most popular gentlemen in Clearfield county, feel justly proud of their new handsome building. It is a nicely finished bank, all the latest and most modern furniture are to be found in it, the banking room proper with an elegant safe and the latest improved vault, also an office that is right up-to-date. We understand that the second story will be occupied by a dental room, insurance office, etc. This is a strong and safe place to deposit, a great convenience and a credit to the promoters.

The Filigree Ball

dum? If you mean that recapitulation of old time mysteries and their accompanying features with which I once whiled away an idle hour, I own to it, of course. Why shouldn't I? It is only a proof of my curiosity in regard to this old mystery which every member of my family must feel. That curiosity has not been appeased. If it would not be indiscreet on your part, may I now ask if you have found out what that little golden ball of mine which you sport so freely before my eyes is to be used in connection with?"

"Read the papers," I said; "read tomorrow's papers, Mr. Moore, or, better still, tonight's. Perhaps they will inform you."

He was as angry as I had expected him to be; but, as this ire proved conclusively that his strongest emotion had been curiosity rather than fear, I felt assured of my ground and turned to re-enter the house. Mr. Moore did not accompany me.

The major was standing in the hall. The others had evidently retreated to the parlor.

"The man opposite knows what he knows," said I, "but this does not include the facts concerning the picture in the southwest chamber or the devilish mechanism."

"You are sure?"

"As positive as one of my inexperience can be. But, major, I am equally positive that he knows more than he should of Mrs. Jeffrey's death. I am even ready to state that in my belief he was in the house when it occurred."

"Has he acknowledged this?"

"Not at all."

"Then what are your reasons for this belief?"

"They are many."

"Will you state them?"

"Gladly, if you will pardon the presumption. Some of my conclusions cannot be new to you. The truth is that I have possibly seen more of this old man than my duty warranted, and I feel quite ready to declare that he knows more of what has taken place in this house than he is ready to avow. I am sure that he has often visited it in secret and knows about a certain broken window as well as we do. I am also sure that he was here on the night of Mrs. Jeffrey's suicide. He was too little surprised when I informed him of what had happened not to have had some secret inkling of it beforehand, even if we had not the testimony of the lighted candle and the book he so hurriedly replaced. Besides, he is not the man to drag himself out at night for so simple a cause as the one with which he endeavored to impose upon us. He knew what we should find in this house."

"Very good. If Mr. Jeffrey's present explanations are true, these deductions of yours are probably correct. But Mr. Moore's denial has been positive. I fear that it will turn out a mere question of veracity."

"Not necessarily," I returned. "I think I see a way of forcing this man to acknowledge that he was in or about this house on that fatal night."

"You do?"

"Yes, sir; I do not want to boast, and I should be glad if you did not oblige me to confide to you the means by which I hope to bring this out. Only give me leave to insert an advertisement in both evening and morning papers and in two days I will report failure or success."

The major eyed me with an interest that made my heart thrill. Then he quickly said: "You have earned the privilege. I will give you two days."

At this moment Durbin reappeared.

He had the book in his pocket. Taking it out, he handed it to the major, with this remark:

"You won't find anything there. The gent's been fooling you."

The major opened the book, shook it, looked under the cover, found nothing, and crossed hastily to the drawing room. We as hastily followed him. The district attorney was talking with Miss Tuttle; Mr. Jeffrey was nervously pacing the floor. The latter stopped as we all entered and his eyes flashed to the book.

"Let me take it," said he.

"It was absolutely empty," remarked the major. "The letter has been abstracted, probably without your knowledge."

"I do not think so," was Mr. Jeffrey's unexpected retort. "Do you suppose that I would intrust a secret, for the preservation of which I was ready to risk life and honor, to the open pages of a book? When I found myself threatened with all sorts of visits from the police and realized that at any moment my effects might be ransacked I sought a hiding place for this letter which no man without superhuman insight could discover. Look!"

And, pulling off the outside wrapper, he inserted the point of his penknife under the edge of the paper lining the inside cover and ripped it off with a jerk.

"I pasted this here myself!" he cried and showed us where between this paper and the boards, in a place thinned out to hold it, there lay a number of folded sheets, which, with a deep sigh,

The concealed letter

he handed over for the major's inspection. As he did so he remarked:

"I had rather have died any natural death than have had my miserable wife's secret known. But since the crime has come to light this story of her sin and her repentance may serve in some slight degree to mitigate public opinion. She was sorely tempted, and she succumbed. The crime of her ancestors was in her blood."

He again walked off. The major unfolded the sheets.

CHAPTER XXV.

LATER I saw this letter. It opens abruptly:

"I killed him. I am all that I said I was, and you can never again give me a thought save in the way of cursing and to bewail the day I came into your life. But you cannot hate me more than I hate myself, my wicked self, who, seeing an obstacle in the way to happiness, stamped it out of existence and so forfeited all right to happiness forever.

"It was so easy! Had it been a hard thing to do—had it been necessary to lay hand on knife or lift a pistol—I might have realized the act and paused. But just a little spring which a child's hand could manage—who, feeling for it, could help pressing it, if only to see—

"I was always a reckless girl, mad for pleasure and without any thought of consequences. When school bored me I took all my books out of my desk, called upon my mates to do the same and, stacking them up into a sort of rostrum in a field where we played, first delivered an oration from them in which reverence for my teachers had small part, then tore them into pieces and burned them in full sight of my admiring schoolfellows. I was dismissed, but not with disgrace. Teachers and scholars bewailed my departure, not because they liked me or because of any good they had found in me, but because my money had thrown luster on them and on the whole establishment. This was when I was twelve, and it was on account of this reckless escapade that I was sent west and kept so long from home and all my flatterers. My guardian meant well by this, but in saving me from one pitfall he plunged me into another. I grew up without Cora and also without any idea of the requirements of my position or what I might anticipate from the world when the time came for me to enter it. I knew that I had money—so did those about me—but I had little or no idea of the amount nor what that money would do for me when I returned to Washington. So, in an evil day, and when I was just eighteen, I fell in love, or thought I did, with a man (oh, Francis, imagine it, now that I have seen you!) of sufficient attraction to satisfy one whose prospects were limited to a contracted existence in a small town, but no more fitted to content me after seeing Washington life than if he had been a common farm hand or the most ordinary of clerks in a country store. But I was young, ignorant and self willed, and thought because my cheek burned under his look that he was the man of men and suited to be my husband—that is, if I thought at all, which is not likely, for I was in a feverish whirl and just followed the impulse of the moment, which was to be with him whenever I could without attracting the teacher's attention. And this, alas, was only too often, for he was the brother of one of our storekeepers, a visitor in Owosso, and often in the store where we girls went.

"We would not have been married in the way we were if he had not wanted to go to the Klondike for the purpose of making money and making it quickly, so that his means might match mine.

"I do not know which of us two was most to blame for that marriage. He urged it because he was going so far away and wanted to be sure of me. I accepted it because it seemed to be romantic and because it pleased me to have my own way in spite of my hard old guardian and the teachers, who were always prying about, and the girls, who went silly over him—for he was really handsome in his way—and who thought (at least many of them did) that he cared for them when he cared only for me.

"I have hated black eyes for a year. He had black eyes.

"I forgot Cora, or, rather, I did not let any remembrance of her hinder me. She was a very shadowy person to me in those days. I had not seen her since we were both children, and as for her letters—they were almost a bore to me; she lived such a different life from mine and wrote of so many things I had no interest in. On my knees I ask her pardon now. I never understood her.

"It was all planned by him—I have no head for such things. Sadie helped him—Sadie was my friend—but Sadie had not much to say about it, for he seemed to know just how to arrange it all so that no one at the seminary should know or even suspect what had occurred till we got ready to tell them. He did not even take his brother into his confidence, for Wallace kept store and gossiped very much with his customers. Besides, he was very busy just then selling out, for he was going to the Klondike with William, and he had too much on his mind to be bothered, or so William said. All this I must tell you or you will never understand the temptation which assailed me when, having returned to Washington, I awoke to my own position and the kind of men whom I could now hope to meet. I was the wife—oh, the folly of it—but this was known to so few, and those were so far removed, and one even—my friend Sadie—being dead—why not ignore the miserable secret ceremony and cheat myself into believing myself free, and enjoy this world of pleasure and fashion as Cora was enjoying it and—trust? Trust what? Why the Klondike! That swallower-up of men. Why shouldn't it swallow one more? Oh, I know that it sounds hateful, but I was desperate; I had seen you.

"I had one letter from him after he reached Alaska, but that was before I left Owosso. I never got another. And I never wrote to him. I rode and danced with you and went hither and yon, lavishing money and time and heart on the frivolities which came in my way, calling myself Veronica and striving by these means to crush out every remembrance of the days when I was known as Antoinette and Antoinette only. For the Klondike was far and its weather bitter, and men were dying there every day, and no letters came (I used to thank God for this), and I need not think—not yet—whither I was tending. One thing only made me recall my real position. That was when your eyes turned on mine—your true eyes, so bright with confidence and pride. I wanted to meet them full, and when I could not I suddenly knew why and suffered.

"I did not accept your attentions nor agree to marry you without a struggle. You know that. You can tell as no one else can how I held back and asked for time and still for time, thus grieving you and tearing my own breast, till a day came—you remember the day when you found me laughing like a mad woman in a circle of astonished friends? You drew me aside and said words which I hardly waited for you to finish, for at last I was free to love you, free to love and free to say so. The morning paper had brought news. A telegraphic dispatch from Seattle told how a man had struggled into Nome, frozen, bleeding and without accouterments or companion. It was with difficulty he had kept his feet and turned in at the first tent he came to. Indeed, he had only time to speak his name before he fell dead. This name was what made this dispatch important to me. It was William Pfeiffer. For me there was but one William Pfeiffer in the Klondike—my husband—and he was dead! That was why you found me laughing. But not in mirth. I am not so bad as that. But because I could breathe again without feeling a clutch about my throat. I did not know till then how nearly I had been stifled.

"The week of our marriage came. I was mad with gayety and ecstatic with hope. Nothing had occurred to mar my prospects. But God had his eye upon me and in the midst of my happiness and the hurry of our final preparations his bolt fell. It struck me while I was at the—don't laugh; rather shudder—at the dressmaker's shop in Fourteenth street. I was leaning over a table, chattering like a magpie over the way I wanted a gown trimmed, when my eye fell on a scrap of newspaper in which something had come rolled to madame. It was torn at the edge, but on the bit lying under my eyes I saw my husband's name, William Pfeiffer, and that the paper was a Denver one. There was but one William Pfeiffer in Denver—and he was my husband. And I read—feeling nothing. Then I read again, and the world, my world, went from under my feet, for the man who had fallen dead in the camp at Nome was Wallace, William's brother, and not William himself. William had been left behind on the road by his more energetic brother, who had pushed on for succor through the worst storm and under the worst conditions possible even in that God forsaken region. With the lost one in mind, the one word that Wallace uttered in sight of rescue was William. It was Wallace who had fallen dead, and while William ——— have perished also, and doubtless had, I had no certainty of it. And my wedding day was set for Thursday.

"Why didn't I tell Cora? Why didn't I tell you? Pride held my tongue; besides, I had had time to think before I saw either of you, and to reason a bit and feel sure that if Wallace had been spent enough to fall dead on reaching the camp, William could never have survived on the open road; for Wallace was the stronger of the two and the most hardy every way. Free! certainly was. Some later paper would assure me of this. But for three nights I did not sleep.

"The caprice which had led me to choose the old Moore house to be married in led me to plan dressing there on my wedding morning. It was early when we started, Cora and I, for Waverley avenue, but not too early for the approaches to that dreadful house to be crowded with people, eager to see the daring bride. Why I should have shrunk so from that crowd I cannot say. I trembled at sight of their faces and at the sound of their voices, and if by chance a head was thrust forward farther than the rest I cowered back instinctively and nearly screamed. Did I dread to recognize a too familiar face? The paper I had seen bore a date six months back. A man could arrive here from Alaska in that time. Or was my conscience aroused at last and clamoring to be heard when it was too late? On the corner of N street the carriage suddenly stopped. A man had crossed in front of it. I caught one glimpse of this man and instantly the terrors of a lifetime were concentrated into one instant of agonizing fear. It was William Pfeiffer. I knew the look; I knew the gait. He was gone in a moment and the carriage rolled on. But I knew my doom as well that minute as I did an hour later. My husband was alive and he was here.

"You were waiting at the curb when I arrived, and I remember how my heart stood still when you laid your hand on the carriage door and confronted me with that light on your face I had never seen disturbed since we first pledged ourselves to marry. In terror I seized the hand which seemed my one refuge in this hour of mortal trouble, and hastened into the house which for all its doleful history had never received within its doors a heart more burdened or rebellious. I pressed your hand with mine and smiled. Oh, God! If you could have seen what lay beneath that smile! For with my entrance beneath those fatal doors a thought had come. I remembered my heritage. I remembered how I had been told by my father when I was a very little girl—I presume when he first felt the hand of death upon him—that if ever I was in great trouble—very great trouble, he had said, where no deliverance seemed possible—I was to open a little golden ball, which he showed me, and take out what I should find inside and hold it close up before a picture which had hung from time immemorial in the southwest corner of this old house.

"He could not tell me what I should encounter there—this I remember his saying—but something that would assist me, something which had passed with good effect from father down to child for many generations. Only, if I would be blessed in my undertakings, I must not open the golden ball nor endeavor to find out its mystery unless my trouble threatened death or some great disaster. Such a trouble had indeed come to me, and, startling coincidence, I was at this moment in the very house where this picture hung, and, more startling fact yet, the golden ball needed to interpret its meaning was round my neck, for with such jealousy was this family trinket always guarded by its owner. Why, then, not test their combined effect? I certainly needed help from some quarter. Never would William allow me to be married to another while he lived. He would yet appear, and I should need this great assistance—great enough to be transmitted from father to son—as none of the Moores had needed it yet, though what it was I did not know and did not even try to guess.

"Yet when I got to the room I did not drag out the filigree ball at once nor even take more than one fearful sidelong look at the picture. In drawing off my glove I had seen his ring—the ring you had once asked about. It was such a cheap affair, the only one he could get in that obscure little town where we were married. I lied when you asked me if it was a family jewel, lied but did not take it off, perhaps because it clung so tightly, as if in remembrance of the vows it symbolized. But now the very sight of it gave me a fright. With his ring on my finger I could not defy him and swear his claim to be false—the dream of a man maddened by his experiences in the Klondike. It must come off. Then perhaps I should feel myself a free woman. But it would not come off. I struggled with it and tugged in vain; then I bethought me of using a nail file to sever it. This I did, grinding and grinding at it till the ring finally broke, and I could wrench it off and cast it away out of sight and, as I hoped, out of my memory also. I breathed easier when rid of this token, yet choked with terror whenever a step approached the door. I was clad in my bridal dress, but not in my bridal veil or ornaments, and naturally Cora and then my maid came to assist me. But I would not let them in. I was set upon testing the secret of the filigree ball.

"The contents of the ball turned out to be a small magnifying glass and the picture a maze of written words. I did not decipher it all; I did not decipher the half. I did not need to. A spirit of divination was given me in that awful hour which enabled me to

THANKSGIVING IN THE CAPITALS

Banquet by the American Society in London.

A SHARP REFERENCE

By Sir Edward Clark.---He Derides the Title "American Ambassador" Because Great Britain Has More Territory in North America Than United States.

AMBASSADOR CHOATE'S REPLY.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The annual Thanksgiving banquet of the American Society at the Hotel Cecil to-night was marked by the presentation to Ambassador Choate of a portrait of himself painted by Hubert Herkomer and paid for by subscriptions by members of the society. An unusual note for such a gathering was introduced by Sir Edward Clarke, who, proposing Mr. Choate's health, sarcastically derided the title "American" Ambassador, declaring that the word American implied domination over the whole of the Western Hemisphere on which the United States does not possess and is not entitled to, as Great Britain is territorially a larger power on the American continent than the United States. Sir Edward suggested that a more suitable title would be Usona, signifying United States of North America.

Having in the first public criticism here of the State Department's order that Embassies hereafter shall be called American, thus uttered a respectful protest against the assumption of the larger name, Sir Edward Clarke proceeded to refer to the miserable underpayment of American judges and America's waste of energies in providing for survivor's of the Civil war, and in building ironclads which she could never use.

Ambassador Choate, replying, said that Americans were quite satisfied with their name and then referred to the election in the United States as a splendid tribute of devotion and affection to a great man. Having remarked upon the regeneration of public life in America, regardless of party now in progress, Mr. Choate alluded to the ever growing friendship between Great Britain and America as a reason for thanksgiving, and added:

"I asked Lord Lansdowne if he was ready to negotiate a treaty of arbitration. 'Why,' said Lord Lansdowne, 'it goes without saying.'"

Continuing, Mr. Choate maintained that many things go without saying above all that they should avoid all possible cause of offense and settle all differences by peaceful names.

He paid a high tribute to the Archbishop of Canterbury's "re-discovery of America," and dilated upon the value of visits to America by such men as the Archbishop and John Morley.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, proposing President Roosevelt's health, expressed his sincere thanks for the great hospitality with which he was received in America. He said America faced problems greater than the world had ever seen but by a stroke of genius had found the man to conquer the difficulties. "We on this side," said the Archbishop, "not less than brothers to you across the Atlantic, thank God, and take courage becausethe destinies of America are safe in Roosevelt's hands."

A Heavy Load.

To lift that load off of the stomach take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. Sour stomach and all disorders of the stomach that are curable, are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. S. P. Storrs, a druggist at 297 Main street, New Britain, Conn. says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. The Subway Tavern.

Many and diverse criticisms have greeted the formal opening of a New York sal on under religious auspices conducted by an eminent clergyman, but we suspect that towards both the saloon and its sponsors, there is a sentimens that had not been voiced in the public prints—the protest of those who have quite as readily found the cause of their ruin in a "respectable" saloon or club house, as they could have found it in a brothel.

The fact is that there have been more good lives spoiled in a single, "comfortable," "home-like," "respectable" saloon than in a score of dives. Prisons and jails are full of men who can exactly trace their present wretched estate to liquor, and perhaps a large majority of these can truthfully say that they never took a drink in a disreputable place. The vile haunts where liquor is sold are frequented by only the natural depraved or those whose misery has been made complete in the "respectable" saloon; but the "swell" cafes, the "Old-Fashioned Henglish Hinns," the cozy "Taverns," and "Poor Men's Clubs" are sought by those whose natural character is for decency, but who don't maintain such a character for a great while after tying up to the liquor habit.

There can be no possible doubt of the sincere intention of the estimable gentleman who advocated in so noble a manner a patronage of the Subway Tavern, but so far as consequences are concerned they might as well have been actuated by the basest of motives, for it is a self-evident proposition that the sanctified Subway Tavern will not at all diminish the number of people who drink and who drink until they can drink no more, but that on the other hand its consecration will be a license to very many heretofore abstemious persons and it would seem certain that this seal of clerical approval upon a truly terrifying evil must greatly increase drunkenness and its attendant crimes.

Every one is bound to look at all matters as they reflect his own condition, and when a man is serving a term of life imprisonment for a crime committed while rendered practically irresponsible by liquor—as is the case with some of our number—he can but wonder at the strangeness of things when he reads that one strenuous divine of New York unhesitatingly acknowledges that he takes a drink "whenever he feels like it," and another joins in the singing of the doxology at the opening of a saloon.

[The above comes from a man who is serving a life sentence in an Eastern penitentiary.—ED.]

Mothers Praise it.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. A certain cure for coughs, croup and whooping cough. A L. Spafford, Postmaster, of Chester, Mich., says: "Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. One Minute Cough Cure quickly relieved and cured her and I cannot praise it too highly." One Minute Cough Cure relieves coughs, makes breathing easy, cuts out phlegm, draws out inflammation, and removes every cause of a cough and strain from lungs. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

Postoffice at Potters Mills.

The postoffice at Potters Mills is to be re-established and opened for business within a short time.

Mrs. Frank A. Carson has been appointed postmistress. The appointment is entirely satisfactory to the patrons of the office, her ability and tact being far in excess of the necessary requirements.

Potters Mills largely owes the re-establishment of the postoffice to merchant Frank A. Carson, in whose general store the postoffice, prior to Sept. 15th, was located and will again be located. When the office was closed, Mr. Carson, out of pure motives, at once began a campaign looking toward the restoration of the same, and with the almost united support of the citizens the desire was accomplished.

For Over Sixty Years.

ACADEMY 0, BELLWOOD 0.

Referee's Rank Decisions Rob Academy of Thanksgiving Day Game.

The Bellefonte Academy foot ball team came home from Bellwood Thanksgiving evening a disappointed and disgusted set. While it is true they had outplayed the Bellwood team at every point and had not allowed their opponents even to threaten their goal line, still they had no official score to bear witness to their superior playing. Incompetent referees they claim, deprived them of two touch downs. In the first half with the ball at Bellwood's ten yard line carried there by steady rushing by the Academy, the referee gave the ball to Bellwood, though it was apparent to everybody that the Academy had gained at least a foot over the five yard requirement. Cap't. Sheppler's demand for measurement was flatly refused by the referee. A large delegation on the side lines from Tyrone and Altoona sympathized with the Academy. In the second half Weaver gathered in a fumbled ball and made a touchdown, the referee refused to allow it. Such officiating was grossly unfair. The players were perfect gentlemen all through the game and the turkey dinner given to the team in the Methodist church was delicious and thoroughly appreciated. In the future however, competent officials will be guaranteed before games are played. Every Academy player put up a fine game.

The line up is as follows:

Bellwood Positions	Academy
Van Scoyic.....lef end.....	Taylor (Bell)
J. Shaner.....left tackle.	Shepler (Capt)
Miller.....left guard.....	Stover
Henderson..... centre.....	Helman
Goss.....right guard.....	Miller
C. Shaner.....right tackle.....	Stine
C. Wentzel.....right end.....	Lane (Weaver)
M. Wentzel.....quarter.....	Weaver
C. Hoover .....left half.....	Roelofs
R. Fleming .... right half.....	Taylor H.
McCoy (Capt.).....full.....	Furey

Referee, McDermott, Umpire, Hughes Time of halves, 20 minutes.

On Saturday, Dec. 3, the Bellefonte football lovers will have an opportunity to witness a good game the weather permitting, at the Fair grounds, between the Academy and Philipsburg teams. The Academy boys have certainly played a strong game this year.

The Road Leads Downward.

There are two points, which, so far as I know, have never been squarely faced by the advocates of the army canteen. First, total abstainers who join the army when the canteen is established are subjected to a tremendous pressure to form drinking habits. The profits of the canteen are devoted to providing amusement and recreation and the purchase of delicacies not included in the regular rations. Can any young man share these benefits and not resist the temptation to pay his part of the bill by patronizing the canteen? It is the business of the government to make virtue easy and vice difficult, but the canteen is so operated as to discourage total abstinence and to encourage habits of moderate drinking. I challenge any one to show that this is not true.

The next point is that the canteen as a method of curbing the evil of drunkenness in the army is based upon a false view of human nature, and consequently in the long run is a failure. Men who begin on beer and light wines will sooner or later develop an appetite for some thing stronger. If they begin at the canteen there is nothing to prevent them from finishing up at the grog shops out side the army post. In process of time the great majority, if not all, of those who patronize the canteen will gravitate to the low down saloons. To suppose otherwise is to fly in the face of experience and the law of habit. The man who takes the first step in an evil course will find it easy to take the second, third, and fourth steps, and so on till he is far down, if not to the bottom of the inclined plane, before he is aware of his condition.

Men will naturally oppose a law that runs counter to their habits and practices. Are the habits of army officers and their personal views of temperance legislation such as to lend any weight to their testimonies in behalf of the canteen? Have they shown candor and disinterestedness in their reports to the War Department on the workings of the anti-canteen law? Most people do not think so, and that their suspicion is well founded is proved by Mr. Littlefield's articles in the "North American Review" for March and April, 1904. Cloud, Iowa.

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. This is only one of the many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve t is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co. in Chicago, and a cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worm, skin diseases, etc. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because It's for One Thing Only, and Bellefonte is Learning This.

Nothing can be good for everything.

Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They're for sick kidneys.

They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is evidence to prove it:

Mrs. James A. Miller, of Tyrone, Pa., living at 1828 Columbia Ave., says: "My husband suffered from rheumatism for years, but it was only a short time ago that he began to complain continually about his back. It kept aching worse and worse until at last he had to lay off work and called in a doctor who told him he had lumbago. His physician gave him some kind of medicine, but it did him no good. One day when he was lying on the lounge unable to move without screaming with pain, a neighbor who dropped in advised him to try Doan's Kidney Pills. He got a box and they certainly have given him surprising relief. They did him so much good that I know he has no hesitation in recommending them to anyone suffering as he did."

Plenty more proof like this from Bellefonte people. Call at F. Potts Green's drug store and ask what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

THE TROUBLES OF THE CZAR.

It is reported that the Czar is weary of the war, and, indeed, it is small wonder if he is. With a navy practically destroyed, an army half obliterated and the winter season setting in with its threat of famine among the troops that are left in the Orient, the situation is enough to sicken the stoutest heart.

But there threatens Nicholas something more disastrous than all these. It is the gigantic shadow of a constutional monarchy that looms large and threatening and casts its sinister shadow over all the broad empire of Russia. Nicholas would avoid this spectre even though he is compelled to acknowledge defeat at the hands of the diminutive Jap.

Yet the movement for a constitutional monarchy must come, and that very soon. Nicholas may delay the hour of this return, but he cannot prevent its coming. Come it will in the natural order of Russian manhood's evolution, and no human power can stay it.

If the Czar is wise, he will bow before the storm and remain unbroken.

A Plucky Schoolmarm.

School teaching in Mifflin township, on Jersey Shore rural route No. 1, has, during the past week, proven to be strenuous employment. The sight of a young lady teacher being carried out of the school house bodily by six of her pupils is an unusual one, yet it actually occurred and had the snow been deep and banked high there could have been but one termination of this undignified performance to whip him. Before she could do so, however, the boy had signalled to three Greenway boys and a Greenway girl, who came forward, together with a boy whose name was not learned.

The six quickly overpowered Miss Snyder—half of the attacking party grabbing her feet and the other half her head and arms and in this unceremonous manner hustled her out of the school. The pupils then hurried back into the building, locked the door and threw the teacher's belongings out of a window.

Miss Snyder reported the matter to the school board, which held a meeting the same night and expelled four of the six pupils who figured in the disgraceful affair. Miss Snyder is full of pluck and announces that she will hold the position no matter what happens.

A New Law Firm.

The old law firm of Orvis, Bower and Orvis which for many years held a leading position at the Centre County bar will on the 1st of January have passed into history. This firm was originally composed of the late Hon. John Holden Orvis, for almost ten years a judge of the Centre County Courts, Calvin M. Bower, who died a year or two ago and Ellis L. Orvis, the Judge-elect of Centre County. The elevation of Mr. Orvis to the bench takes out of practice the last member left of the firm.

In the place of the old firm however a new firm of young men has sprung up to take their places. It will be composed of Samuel D. Gettig, John J. Bower and W. D. Zerby. They are all bright, active, young men and possessed of excellent qualifications. We bespeak for them a large measure of the success which always followed the old firm of Orvis, Bower & Orvis.

Robbers Fire Clearfield County Town.

The store of Bratton & Ross, at the mining town of Faunce, along the Clearfield and southern extension of the New York Central railroad, was broken into at an early hour Thursday morning, robbed and then burned down. Goods from the store were found scattered about the woods. The fire spread to the surrounding buildings, consuming the station and offices of the New York Central railroad, the postoffice, warerooms and numerous other buildings.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30th.

All appearances indicate that the Administration will conduct the affairs of the nation on strictly business principles for the common good. The tone of the President's three last speeches, pleading for race harmony, deprecating class distinctions, urging men and women to be strong and make the most of themselves, advocating the simple life and proclaiming religious toleration, indicates that so far as in him lies, peace and good will shall prevail throughout the land, followed by a state of intelligent happiness heretofore unknown in America. On Wednesday last some Chicago gentlemen called at the White House to ask the President to induce Secretary Hay to consent to deliver a speech on Washington's birthday before the Union League Club of that city. Mr. Roosevelt said that Mr. Hay's health is not such as to warrant his undertaking to prepare a speech for the nature indicated. He is crowded with important diplomatic work and has yet to prepare a program for the forthcoming Hague conference. And while Congress is in session the work of the State Department will be augumented.

The President added that now that the campaign is over, and Secretary Taft, Shaw and Wilson have enlightened the people generally upon government matters, from Maine to California, he desires for the future that members of the Cabinet shall not be called upon to deliver addresses except when they may necessarily appear as public officers. He says so much speaking and traveling interferes with their proper work and retards business. Most people will agree with the President and applaud his determination.

Much to the delight of Massachusetts the announcement is made that Secretary Moody will remain in the cabinet. The President is fond of him, and finds that they hold many views in common on the great sociological questions—capital and labor; improvement of moral and material conditions; the tariff, finances, trusts, etc. Mr. Moody is known to have the Beef trust in hand, and the President has the highest confidence in his legal ability.

The fact that the President finished his message before starting for St. Louis, and that it is now in proof, is thought here in Washington to indicate that it is a brief document recommending little legislation outside of the regular appropriation bills. These of themselves promise to call for enough money, and it would be unwise to disturb present business interests by introducing revolutionary legislation. On all sides bureau chiefs are asking for more funds and more men. Government work increases so fast, as a result of the great undertaking in which it is engaged, that it is difficult to keep up with it. The Panama canal will soon need many more men and much money. The chief of the Bureau of Navigation asked for a general staff not unlike that provided for the army, to administer naval affairs, and said that the number of officers should be increased at least 50 per cent. He wants 600 lieutenants in the Navy and 300 lieutenant commanders He urges that the United States must be prepared to meet any crisis at any time. He would have Congress authorize a naval reserve of 20,000 men with 600 commissioned officers.

The coming short session of Congress promises to be hard working and full of business, if everybody's wishes are to be satisfied. A score of Senators and twice as many Representatives have already arrived in this city, and more are coming every day. Of the great appropriation bills waiting to be passed, which exceed the hundred million dollar mark, there are the Post-office, the Pension and the Navy building, the river and harbor, and the Panama and Philippine bills. Legislature will be asked for authorizing extensive improvements in the Philippine railways, highways and public buildings. Naturally, much of the money for this work must come from the Filipinos themselves.

Among the incidental matters to come before Congress are the proposed impeachment of Judge Swayne, of Florida, and the case of Senator Smoot. While additional evidence is being taken in both of these cases many Congressmen are of the opinion that the Judge will not be impeached and that the Senator will be allowed to retain his seat. This, aside from the fact, that the five more or less Mormon States went Republican.

The department of Commerce and Labor has published a very interesting report of the exports of the United States for twelve months ending October 31st. It shows that in spite of the unusually small exports of food products during the period indicated, the total value of all kinds exceeds by $60,000,000 the exports of any preceding year. While bread stufis fall off $86,000,000 below the corresponding period of 1903, and $158,000,000 below 1901, the exports of manufactures and of raw cotton make up the differences and account for the great increase. The export of cotton alone exceeds by $22,000,000 the corresponding period of last year.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers were recorded during the past week by Recorder J. C. Rowe.

Linden Hall Lumber Co., to Commonwealth of Penna. Nov. 4, 1904, land in Harris Twp. Consideration $1.

Wm. Whitmer & Sons Co., et al, to Com. of Pa., Oct. 21, 1904, 7000 acres in Centre and Huntingdon counties. Consideration $7,667.43.

Mary Bean to John Marks July 29th, 1898, tract 1 acre and 21 perches in Taylor Twp. Consideration $15.

Mary L. Knepp, et bar, to John C. Marks March 15, 1903, tract in Taylor Twp. Consideration $40.

John W. Mitterling et ux, to Elmer R McClellan, June 7, 1904, 2 tracts in Potter Twp. Consideration $3,000.

Lawrence W. Nuttall et ux, to Caleb E. Long, May 28, 1904, house and lot in Philipsburg. Consideration $1600.

J. H. Reifsnyder to Chas. E. McClellan March 25, 1904, lot 35 and ½ of No. 34 in Millheim. Consideration $700.

Wm. Witmer & Sons' Co., to Com., of Penna., Sept. 15, 1904, 1,020 acres & 92 perches in Haines and Penn Twps. Consideration $3,061.73.

Wm. Laird to Elsworth Vaughn, Sept. 1, 1903, tract in Taylor Twp. Consideration $20.

New Postal Law.

The now postal law which makes it lawful to accept for transportation in the mails quantities of not less than 2,000 identical pieces of third or fourth class matter without postage stamps affixed, provided that the rate of each piece has been prepaid, may go into effect this month.

The post office department at Washington is now preparing the circulars of information to be sent out throughout the country, and when the law goes into effect it will do away with a great number of clerks.

Heretofore all third and fourth class mail matter when sent out had to have the proper postage on each article. By the new law the postmaster can accept any amount over 2,000 pieces, average them by the number of pieces to the pound, accept the amount required to post the whole invoice and then forward them to their proper destination.

This means a great saving in clerk hire to the shippers, a reduction in the amount of stamps now being engraved for the department and also a reduction of clerks in the Post Office department.

THE PRESIDENT'S QUIET SUNDAY

Attended Church and Enjoys a Carriage Ride.

SERMON BY DR. NICCOLS

Dinner Sunday Evening at the Francis Home. Careful Precautions Taken for the President's Safety.

SPECIAL TRAIN STARTS ON RETURN.

ST. LOUIS Nov. 27.—In sharp contrast with the strenuous experience of yesterday, when a hurricane effort was made to view the mammoth Louisiana Purchase Exposition in nine hours, President Roosevelt's time today was passed quietly and uneventfully. Rest constituted the whole idea of the President and party to-day. After a late family breakfast at the residence of Wm. H. Thompson, the treasurer of the Exposition company, the President, Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Secretary and Mrs. Loeb and Dr. Rixey attended service at 11 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian church.

GREAT CROWD WAS ENTHUSIASTIC.

It was well known that the President would attend the morning service at this church and long before his arrival the streets in that vicinity were banked with people almost from curb to curb. The crowd was handled admirably, however, and gave the big force of police and secret service officers no trouble. A considerable crowd assembled also near the Thompson residence. As the President and Mrs. Roosevelt descended the steps of the residence to enter the carriage, the people respectfully uncovered, but there was no noisy demonstration. Both he and Mrs. Roosevelt acknowledged the silent salutation of the crowd, the President by tipping his hat and the latter by bowing and smiling.

SAME CAREFUL PRECAUTIONS.

Careful precautions were taken by the officers to insure the personal safety of the party. The President's carriage was surrounded by secret service officers and two picked sergeants of the Eighty United States cavalry rode, one on each side of the carriage, both going to and returning from the church. As the President's carriage stopped at the church entrance, the crowd could restrain its friendly feelings no longer. Hearty cheers were given for the President, which he acknowledged by tipping his hat. Entering the church the members of the party were escorted to pews which had been reserved for them.

THE SERMON BY DR. NICCOLS.

The service was conducted and the sermon preached by Rev. Dr. S. J. Niccols, pastor of the church, the lesson being read by the assistant pastor. The subject of Dr. Niccols address was the glory of the Kingdom of God and the progress it is making in the world. No reference was made by the pastor in his sermon to the President and only the usual supplication was offered in his final prayer for the safety and wise conduct of the President of the United States.

At the conclusion of the service, however, the pastor requested the congregation to remain seated while the President and his party retired from the church. The President was well on his way to the residence of Mr. Thompson, therefore, before the congregation had left the church.

After luncheon the President and Mrs. Roosevelt received informally a few personal friends who called merely to pay their respects.

At four o'clock the party went for an extended drive. In the carriage with the President was Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Loeb and Mayor Wells, of St. Louis. Other members of the party followed in carriages. The drive extended through Forest park and over the residential boulevards in that section of the city. It was 5:30 o'clock when the President returned to Mr. Thompson's residence.

THE RETURN TO WASHINGTON.

Tonight the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Secretary and Mrs. Loeb, Dr. Rixey and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were entertained at dinner by President Francis, of the Exposition company, and Mrs. Francis, at their residence. After the dinner the President and party returned to the Thompson residence. At 10:15 they left in carriages for the exposition grounds, where their special train had been held awaiting their departure for Washington.

A Lucky Find.

Roland Spicer, driver for R. B. Taylor, lost his valuable watch in the coal. He hunted for it in vain. Mrs. Miles Walker when pouring coal into the stove saw the glisten of something she thought was a tin box lid but on closer examination turned out to be the long lost watch. Mr. Spicer feels very gratified for the find.

FOR MONEY LOANED

Herbert E. Newton Sues Mrs. Cassie Chadwick.

New York, Nov 29.—A sensation has been caused here by the bringing of suit by Herbert D. Newton, of Brookline, Mass., against Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, of Cleveland, O., for $190 800 for money loaned. Mrs. Chadwick is the widow of a Cleveland physician. In addition to Mr. Newton's suit, several banks have taken legal action to recover various amounts, which brings the total sum to $267,000.

Besides Mr. Newton, the plaintiffs in the suits against Mrs. Chadwick are the Euclid Avenue Saving and Trust Co., of Cleveland, for $38,231; the Saving Deposit Bank and Trust Co., of Elyria, O., for $10.000, and the American Exchange National band, for $28,809

Mr. Newton today filed a motion in the common please court asking for the appointment of a receiver of the alleged securities belonging to Mrs. Chadwick, said to be in custody of Iri Reynolds, at the Wade Park bank.

The court issued subpoenas for both Mrs. Chadwick and Iri Reynolds, secretary and Treasurer of the Wade Park banking company. Reynolds is ordered to bring into court tomorrow morning all certificates and securities he may hold belonging to Mrs. Chadwick. Mrs. Chadwick is commanded to bring into court a full list of all securities she may have and also any securities themselves that may be in her possession, or, if the same are not in her possession, certified copies of them, being the securities alleged to have been shown to Newton.

Mr. Reynolds declared today that he did not know whose name was signed to the alleged note for $500,000, payable to Mrs. Chadwick, that he was not holding any such note among the securities in his possession belonging to Mrs. Chadwick and that he did not even know of any such note being in existence.

He said he did not believe there was such a note and said there were no diamonds or other jewels in his possession among the securities he holds for Mrs. Chadwick.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—Herbert D. Newton, of Brookline, who has sued Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, of Cleveland, O. for $190.800, is a well-to do business man. Concerning the action against Mrs. Chadwick, he says that suit has been brought at Cleveland to recover upon loans made to Mrs. Chadwick, for which promised payments had not been made when due.

"I am not alone concerned in this matter," said he, "but I must decline to tell who are the other parties. I made the loans on the strength of a statement of Mrs. Chadwick that she was a woman of wealth and owned securities sufficient to warrant the loans. The promised payments were not forthcoming and we propose to find out whether the assertions were true."

At the Front of Pennsylvania Trotters.

The Philadelphia Press in an article in Sunday's issue in reference to the achievements of John Taylor, the trotter, says: "One of the several good Pennsylvania horses campaigning down the grand circuit during the past season and the largest money winner from the Keystone state is the gray trotting gelding John Taylor 2.08¼, by Dispute, owned by John Merrill, the well known Lock Haven horseman and trained and campaigned by Richard Wilson, of Indiana. A review of all John Taylor's races shows that during the season he started seventeen times, winning six firsts, three third moneys, and two fourths, being outside the money six times. He started in forty-five heats, winning twelve and of that number five were in 2.10 or better. John Taylor's total purse winnings were $6,525. He will winter in Indiana."

No More Free Circus Tickets.

Window lithographs and free passes to the circus will soon be a thing of the past if the ideas of the proprietor of the Barnum and Bailey and the Ringling Brothers' shows, two of the largest traveling companies in this country, are carried out. These two interests, it is announced, have entered into an agreement which they believe will be of great benefit and other showmen have been invited to give them aid in putting the plan into use. The agreement entered into includes a mutual understanding as to routes and general operations and a proposal to abolish the free ticket. If this is put into effect the window lithographs will become a thing of the past.

Death of Guerney S. Kerstetter.

Guerney S. Kerstetter died at his home in Buffalo, Mo., Saturday morning, November 19th, of typhoid pneumonia. He was aged about thirty-seven years.

Mr. Kerstetter was a son of the late William Kerstetter, of Millheim, from which place he went west with his father-in-law, A. Reed Alexander.

He is survived by his wife and one child.

Port Arthur The Key of Asia.

Collier's for November 19 says:

The story of Port Arthur, distressing as it is, has at least the merit of showing what a cargo of heroic virtues the old world still carries. Slaughter has never been more shocking, but bravery has never been more abundant. Never in all history have men shown greater defiance of death than has been shown in the terrible months of struggle for the citadel which has been for years the key to the Eastern situation. We can not wonder at the price Japan would pay for the fortress since as long as Russia owns that fort the purpose for which this war is fought will not have been accomplished by Japan. If the war should be settled without depriving Russia permanently of the fortress, a dagger would still be pointed at Japan's heart. The control of Korea by Japan would be an insecure defence as long as the strongest position in Manchuria was held by her enemy. Russia needed to hold the fortress for the same reasons that Japan needed to take it. Additional motives for both sides were furnished by considerations of prestige and by the bearing of the Port Arthur situation on the immense struggle further north. The talk about whether all this desperate courage and destruction about Port Arthur has been well invested, therefore, seems to us beside the mark. If the war was to be at all, Port Arthur was a necessity to each of the combatants, and time was an essential consideration to both, especially to Japan. It being something vital, therefore, to their countries' welfare, Russians and Japanese alike have fought for the stronghold in a manner to prove that man still retains the virtues of the bulldog. Effeminacy, for the great modern nations, is an imaginary bogy. Let a danger, as vital as has confronted Japan, threaten Germany, France England, or the United States, and we imagine that they also would still be found capable of fighting desperately in the last ditch.

Editor's Advance Sheet

The leading article in The Engineering Magazine for December is an investigation by Mr. F. W. Haskell of the cause of the enormous number of fatal accidents on American railways. He finds it to be the habitual breaking of train rules, connived at by the officers of the roads; the subversion of discipline by trade-union interference; and the disturbance of regular schedules by over-devotion to the "tons per train-mile" idea.

In the same number are very fine illustrated articles on pumping machinery for drydocks, by Lieut. J. S. Shultz, U. S. N.; on the building and erection of the machinery for a modern cement mill in the Pyrenees, by Mr. G. M. Peek; on the smelters of British Columbia, by Mr. W. M. Brewer; and on the construction of a railway line in South China, by Mr. Justin Burns. There is a valuable study of shop organization and tool-room practice, by Mr. K. Emerson, and an interesting dissertation on steam-boilers, by Mr. E. P. Watson. The number carries the customary full Review of the Engineering Press of the month, and the complete Index to current engineering literature.

CORRESPONDENCE

FIEDLER.

Another bold and daring robbery took place at the home of Michael Eby on Sunday evening. It appears that in the morning Moses Eby returned a loan of $1400 to his brother Henry, (living with Mike.) They counted the money over in front of the barn to be sure it was all right. Henry then wrapped it in a paper and took it into an old sheep stable for safe keep, during the day he prepared some other place for his money, and about dusk went to get the money, but it could not be found. They strongly suspected some parties but as no one saw who took the money the thief is still at large. About a month ago one of the hogs disappeared one night out of their stable, and it is hard to conjecture what will be next.

While thrashing one day last week the boiler of the engine belonging to David Burd exploded, luckily no one was hurt.

Hunters are plenty, but game is scarce, all they can find is lots of "Fencymice."

Mrs. C. J. Hinds purchased a fine Jersey heifer of Mrs. J. W. Shook at Spring Mills,

S. H. Winkleblech and Thos. Smith have secured the contract to build a new barn for Jacob Reed, to take the place of the one recently destroyed by fire. Mr. Reed got $1925.00 insurance from the Anville Company.

John Hess sold his farm for $3000. He still has about 12 acres for sale. Mr. Hess expects to go to South Dakota in the spring and purchase a farm there.

Newton Hess returned from a trip to the World's Fair and South Dakota, and reports that he purchased a farm and will make sale, and move there in the spring. E. M, Boone and A. W. Wetzel will also make their homes in the far west, near Scotland, South Dakota.

FOWLER.

Butchering is the latest here, everybody is butchering.

Cecil Barr, of Altoona, is visiting at the home of M. C. Walk.

Miss Anna Muffley spent Thanksgiving at her home in Howard.

Mrs. Geo. Miller, of Huntingdon, spent a few days with her father J. S. McMonigal.

Mrs. Wm. Lego and daughter Ruth, spent a few days at Bald Eagle recently.

The revival that had been in progress for sometime at Hannah has closed.

Jennie Cowher, of Osceola, is visiting friends at this place.

What makes Elmer Burns look so pleasant? Why it is a 10 pound boy remember this is the first one in 17 years. Now Elmer we want to know if you are going to keep it.

CENTRE HALL.

Howard Rossman and A. W. Finkle, of Spring Mills, were visitors in Centre Hall last Friday evening.

R. A. Krape, who is working in Reedsville, Mifflin Co., spent Saturday and Sunday with his family in Centre Hall. He expects to move to Reedsville in a few weeks,

Roy Rearick, of the furniture firm of Rearick Bros., is in Cincinnati taking lessons in the art of embalming. J. Paul Rearick, of the same firm, took a load of furniture to Milroy on last Tuesday. W. A. Krise accompanied him and paid a short visit at the home of his daughter's family.

Thanksgiving was observed by a Union service held in the Lutheran church, conducted by Revs. Rearick, Gress, Schuyler, Shultz and McIlnay, the latter preaching the sermon.

PORT MATILDA.

The Presbyterians and Methodists here have began practicing for Christmas entertainments.

Prof. Meyer, a musician, of Bellefonte was in this place on Tuesday of last week with the prospect of locating a singing class here.

A. B. Woodring, Wm. and Howard Cowher all of Tyrone spent part of last week visiting and hunting in this place.

The Presbyterians of this place held a chicken and waffle supper in the K. G. E. hall on Wednesday night of last week.

The Boone Hunting Club of this place returned on last Saturday from the Alleghenies with empty barrels in their guns. That's all.

PENNSYLVANIA FURNACE.

Victor Morden is visiting friends in Franklinville.

Stewart Harpster is confined to his home by sickness.

Roy Barte shot a seventeen-pound turkey recently.

Calvin Miller and bride came home to spend Thanksgiving.

Thursday being a legal holiday, all schools and other public buildings were closed.

A party of our hunters have secured one deer. The animal was shot by Howard Barr.

Messrs. McKelvey and Harpster saw a wild cat while on a hunting expedition Wednesday.

A few days ago William Frank was kicked by a horse and had both bones in his leg broken.

Mrs. Ward, daughter and grand-daughter are visiting relatives and friends at this place.

Some of our hunters have been very successful this season. Valentine Goodman has three turkeys to his credit.

The hay baler and clover seed rubber have been doing an extensive business during the past few weeks.

Arthur and Newton Miller are home on a vacation. They have been hunting during the past week, but have so far been unsuccessful.

Miss Mary Johnson after spending two months in Tyrone returned home.

Messrs Barton and Frier of New York City, were here on a business trip with L. C. Bullock's Manufacturing Co.

Thomas Campbell spent Thanksgiving day in Jersey Shore and had an engagement to play with the Lock Haven Orchestra at that place.

Frank Wetzler returned from Philadelphia after receiving treatment at the hospital. He is feeling much benefitted.

Mr. Loveland and wife, of Jersey Shore spent Thanksgiving day with their daughter, Mrs. S. M. Huff.

Jas. Graffmire and Wm. Stacy were recent visitors from Hollidaysburg at the home of W. B. Graffmire and wife.

Wm. Quick arrived home from Altoona and started on Friday for Berwick where he has accepted a good position in the trolly traction car shops. He was one of 400 who witnessed the coming in and the going out of the Liberty Bell on last Saturday from St. Louis.

On Friday morning the Beezer Bro's. of Bellefonte were enroute for Snow Shoe with cattle and at the Bald Eagle Iron Bridge they had a collision with John C. Peters which might have been a serious accident. Mr. Peters was returning from the R. R. station with a bale of broom corn. One of the cattle got tangled up with his horse. Another man with a buggy was also in the mix up, his hind wheels being backed upon the stone butment of the bridge throwing him out on the pike. He lit on his head and shoulders. It looked frightful for a while with horses, men and cattle mixed together. With presence of mind and quietness all come out safe, no one seriously hurt.

Solomon Shay had a walk laid from his front gate across the road for the purpose of keeping out of the mud as much as possible. On Friday night some malicious person or persons scattered it promiscuously all over the road. Mr. Shay wishes to give them due warning against such work in the future. He will hit them with the broad side of the law. He can lay his hands on the malicious intruders, beware and take timely warning.

Two of our business men, one of the burg, the other of Central City, started to Dan'l O'neil's farm for a turkey hunt. "The hunt was a good one." The turkeys were not visible. The Central City man got for his day's hunt one rabbit, the burg man shot one of John Womers' turkeys costing him $2.00 for the shot. He brought it home with him, had a wild turkey dinner as they termed it. When they arrived home other nimrods began to guy the burg man about his luck, some one let the cat out of the wallet, telling how he came to get his turk. After buying it he took it into the woods then shot it. As the law says any fowls leaving their own premises are considered wild game, so it was in this case.

The Banquet given on the evening of the Nov. 24 by the citizens Hook and Ladder fire Co. was a grand success in every particular. The committee in charge of arrangements did all to make a success in short notice. The committee consisted of L. C. Bullock, Ross Wallace, Jas. B. Noll, Melvin Derr, Geo. McCullough, Brinton Wallace and Wm. Baird, Prof. Jas. Gregg was chosen as toastmaster. After the guests were comfortably seated around the refreshment table, Prof. Gregg delivered an off hand appropriate address. 50 guests partook of the refreshments, That part of the programme being finished, addresses were next in order of which were numerous and spicy and to the point for the occasion. More especially L. C. Bullock's short address, illustrated by his combination of a toy jumping jack it brought down the house with roars of laughter. Next was Prof. Gregg's turn for a short speech. In a joking way he began, upon entering a department store the other day I was a spectator to an embarrassing incident which happened to the floor walker. He was dressed in the height of fashion but was some what bow legged a peculiar old fashioned woman entered the store in front of me. The floor-walker stepped up and asked what she wished to purchase. Upon being told he started off wagging his coat tails and of course his bow legged way of walking was rather conspicuous but just as he started down the store he turned to her and said, "Walk this way please," "Oh! dear" she exclaimed, "I could not if I tried.

Boom Your Town.

If you want your town to grow and prosper, wake up, rub your eyes, roll up your sleeves and go to work for. It takes a great deal of hustling in this work, but once the town betterment movement is under way almost everyone will join in.

If you want business to come to your town, encourage those who come. If you want a prosperous town where people can come who are disposed to make homes then do away with and busy from sight all jealousy and spite and work more for common prosperity and mutual benefit. Wake up, rub your eyes, roll up your sleeves and go to work. Do not work with fear and trembling but take for granted that blood will tell.

Leave results to themselves, borrow no troubles, but all unite to make it the biggest kind of a town.

Robbery of a Circus Pay-wagon.

Norfolk, Va,—The paywagon of Forepaugh & Sells Brothers Circus was robbed of $30,000 Saturday at Tarboro, N, C Every effort is being made by the circus people and the limited police authorities of the town to apprehend the robbers and several arrests have been made but no trace of the money has been found.

The circus played in Greenville Friday, and arrived in Tarboro Saturday morning in three sections over the Atlantic Coast Line. The pay-wagon had been broken into and robbed during transit or shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning, and efforts were at once made to capture the thieves.

Every man connected with the show was searched and put under surveillance. Several were locked up on suspicion, but some of them have been released.

Police Chief Walter Johnson, of Tarboro, in conversation over the telephone, said:

"We have no clue to the robbers, but suspect people connected with the show who were familiar with the manner the cash was handled and who had completed their plans before under taking to get the money."

She Held the Fort.

Mrs. Mary Ferris, worth $100,000 in her own name, a relative of the man who built the world famed Ferris wheel, on Friday, stood off the surveying corps of the Pennsylvania Railroad for 36 hours, using a club, a determined look, a revolver and the family dog. The railroad people had sought to throw a foot bridge across the Allegheny river near Pittsburg and Mrs. Ferris found that they were encroaching about five feet of her grounds. She is 65 years of age and is said to have been a fighter from her youth up. The Pennsylvania road people soon abandoned the project. She remained on guard for 36 hours, then gave way to her son, who still held the fort when a lawyer retained by his mother intervened.

Funnier Than a Circus.

Si Plunkard and his farmers will be at the Opera House Monday evening, Dec. 5th. Si will bring his famous country band with him, and show you city chaps the pride of Fairview. Si say: "Gosh, him and his buglers are right in it," and will parade about noon, rain or shine, no difference, because all him and his boys have got to do is tuck their trousers in their boots and wade in the mud knee deep. Si will lead the band whistling "the mocking bird," so don't fail to see this novel and amusing street parade on the main streets only.

—That which is described as the biggest and best "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. travelling, will appear at the Opera House on Saturday evening Dec. 3rd. It is known from ocean to ocean as Leon W. Washburn's Stetson Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., and is composed af fifty men, women and children, all capable actors, actresses, singers and dancers. As a scenic production, it is said to be better than any other. Among others worthy of special mention are the Ohio river by moonlight, the beautiful Vision Scene, and the gorgeous Transformation Scene at the close. A number of prize Shetland ponies, trick mules and Col. Sawyer's splendid pack of genuine Siberian bloodhounds are special features. The spectacular street pageant has a great many beautiful Shetland ponies, chariots and handsomely carved tableau wagons besides other novelties. The parade is led by Washburn's Great Military band and is worth going a long way to see.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

A Cold Shake

One day old Polar Bear had just finished a dinner of frozen fish and walrus hide boots, the boots having been left him by an arctic explorer whom he had eaten at a previous meal, and was taking a quiet promenade on the ice floe when he ran across a would be hunter, gold prospector, pole discoverer and what not, carrying a double barreled gun.

As soon as the hunter saw Mr. Bear he dropped his gun and began to load up with buckshot.

Curious to see this strange personage, Mr. Bear drew near. "What are you doing there, if I may be so bold?" he asked.

"Oh, I'm loading for bear," replied the hunter, putting in some more shot.

"I'M LOADING FOR BEAR."

"I hope you will forbear," said Mr. Polar, rising upon his hind legs and opening his mouth pleadingly. "I find it inconvenient to carry much lead about my person—so heavy, don't you know. But, say, why did you think of shooting in my direction?"

"Well, you see," said the hunter sadly, "I was brought up on a certain breakfast food, and every morning, as a boy, a box of this same stood before my plate. I had to eat it or starve. It had a big bear on the outside, and I made up my mind, as a boy, to kill any bear that came my way—they remind me so of the breakfast food."

"Well," said Mr. Bear, "I guess if that's the case you ought to have satisfaction. You look half starved, and if it will do you good I'm ready to be a victim. But let me tell you how to make your shot scatter."

"How?" asked the hunter interestedly.

"Oh, put in one shot at a time," said Mr. Bear.

"Never thought of it," said the hunter, and emptied all the contents of his gun barrels in the snow.

Mr. Polar saw his chance and was off. "Goodby," he yelled. "You need more breakfast food."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Little Outcast.

"A Little Outcast" with its splendid scenic equipment will be housed at the Opera House, to-night, Dec. 1st. This big New York production is a melodrama of the cleanliest type, having every essence of human interest and is without doubt the best thing of its kind yet produced. The piece is brimful of modern amazements and peculiarly fascinating scenes to attract theatre goers, but withal it is a love story, pure and simple, with every trait of loyalty and affection which could be lent to give the play a nobler intent and color. The story, which is a wide departure from the usual style of drama and is marked by novelty in construction, is built upon the vicissitudes of a young clerk, and passes in swift action from stately mansions to crime-infested haunts of New York.

The stage sittings are striking and novel, views are given of a fashionable home with its white and gold drawing room, tapestries windows and pink marble bath, a bizarre Chinese restaurant with rich Oriental hangings; Five Points, Cooper Union and a panoramic view of the battery at night, with all the great buildings lighed with hundreds or incandescent lights and the great Government pier. A spectacle of the fight in the water off same, with the roar of the waves, the great swimming "feat" of "Bob" and the rescue by the police in the electric launch.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

Anxious Moments.

Some of the most anxious hours of a mother's life are those when the little ones of the household have the croup. There is no other medicine so effective in this terrible malady as Foley's Honey and Tar. It is a household favorite for throat and lung troubles, and as it contains no opiates or other poisons it can be safely given. For sale by C. M. Parrish.

Pennsylvania Railroad's Winter Excursion Route Book.

In pursuance of its annual custom, the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has just issued an attractive and comprehensive book descriptive of the leading Winter resorts of the East and South, and giving the rates and various routes and combinations of routes of travel. Like all the publications of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, this "Winter Excursion Book" is a model of typographical and pictorial work. It is bound in a handsome and artistic cover in colors, and contains much valuable information for Winter tourists and travelers in general. It can be had free of charge at the principal ticket offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, or will be sent postpaid upon application to Geo. W. Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

A Word of Explanation.

Lest there be any misunderstanding as to the Star Course and single admission tickets to the entertainments the price of the course of five evenings is $1.50 reserved seats, 15 cts. extra for each one. Single admission is 50 cents reserved seats 15 cts. extra. The price is so very low that no one should hesitate to secure a seat in time. There are five or six rows of chairs not reserved, but the balance of the house will be for reserve and only those having tickets can have the seats. The course this season is a high priced one—not one cheap attraction in it. Those buying season tickets would have no special advantage over single admission—hence the single tickets are 50 cents and reserved 15cts. extra each night. The chart will open on Wednesday, Nov. 30th, at Shefler's store. As many object to reserves being sold for the season there will be none sold, so "first come first served" will be the rule each evening. Secure your seats early.

Thousands Cured

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex. "and used it for a stubborn case of piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

UNSELFISH WOMEN.

Mrs. Craigie on the Growing Handicap of Marriage.

Mrs. Craigie, better known as John Oliver Hobbes, the well known novelist, has sent the following communication to the London Mail as a contribution to a discussion of "The Growing Handicap of Marriage:"

"Women, where their feelings are in question, are not selfish enough. They appraise themselves not too dearly, but far too cheaply. It is the suicidal unselfishness of women which makes the selfishness of the modern bachelor possible. Bachelors are not all misogynists, and the fact that a man remains unmarried is no proof that he is insensible to the charm of a woman's companionship or that he does not have such companionship on irresponsible terms to a most considerable degree. Why should the average vain young man, egotistic by organism and education, work hard or make sacrifices for the sake of any particular woman while so many are too willing to share his life without joining it and so many more wait eagerly on his steps to destroy any chivalry or tenderness he may have been born with?

"Modern women give bachelors no time to miss them and no opportunity to need them; their devotion is undisciplined, and it becomes a curse rather than a blessing to its object. Why? Because women have this strange power of concentration and self abnegation in their love; they cannot do enough to prove their kindness. And when they have done all and have been at no pains to secure their own position they realize that they have erred through excess of generosity and the desire to please. This is the unselfishness shown toward bachelors."

PROPER CORSETS.

One Reason Why the Frenchwoman Always Looks So Trim.

It is a well known fact that Frenchwomen spend about three times as much money on their corsets as American women do. At first one is apt to call this expenditure extravagant, but on due consideration it appears that a well turned out corset is an economy. The average American woman possesses, as a rule, only one wearable corset at a time, and probably she does not pay more than $2.50 for it in the first place. After a month's use, morning, noon and night, it is bound to lose its shape and give the figure anything but a trig appearance. Now, the Frenchwoman has at least two corsets at once, and in most cases more than two. She would not dream of lounging in the house in the corset that she wears on the street. No more would she do any housework in the same corset that she wears under a thin evening gown. Parisian mothers are exceedingly careful as to the kind of corsets their daughters wear, believing that only the best should be molded to the unformed figures of young girls. Very few corsets are sold in the French stores, for the reason that the vast majority of the women contrive in some way to get them made to order.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

A little lemon juice added to the water for mixing pastry improves the flavor and helps to make it light.

Just a squeeze of lemon juice added to sauces, soups, gravies or stews after cooking brings out the flavor wonderfully and is a great improvement.

Fried potatoes will be tough if washed after being cut, and potatoes will be dark if fried in boiling fat, but light golden brown if cooked for five minutes in hot fat.

Cold meat, chopped fine, covered with mayonnaise dressing and decorated rings of hard boiled eggs and parsley, makes a delicious supper salad when laid on nice crisp lettuce leaves.

Meat should never be washed before cooking. If it has any appearance of being handled or not quite fresh it ought to be scraped with a knife and then wiped with a cloth dampened with vinegar.

The burnished plumage of the peacock owes its brilliancy and splendor to a healthful condition. Let the bird be sickly, and the plumage droops and grows dull. There is no exception in nature to the rule that beauty depends on health.

Women who see their beauty waning rarely associate the external change with failure of the womanly health. They do not understand the close relation of the general physical health to the health of the delicate womanly organism, until after being cured of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they find the color returning to the cheek and the flesh to the body.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Several years ago I was very poorly," writes Mrs. May Kelley, of Sylvia, Kans., "so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and at times suffered severely. I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and got well and hardy—gained twelve pounds in two months and was the picture of health. Your medicines have cured me. Almost everybody I meet says, 'You look so much better than you have for several years; you look well now.'"

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a lady's laxative. Nothing equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

The Youth's Companion as a Gift.

What other Christmas present can you choose that will give so much pleasure for as little money as a year's subscription for The Youth's Companion? An Animal Story For Little Folks

A Long Headed Dog

Rover had been disturbed long enough. His sleep had been broken constantly for nights by the endless dispute of two big tomcats that nightly sat upon the wall of his yard and fought it out till morning. He determined the thing should cease.

"I should think you two would get very tired of standing with your backs hitched up like a croquet wicket all night long," he said.

"We do," said the cats, "but don't see how we can well help it. This thing of right of way on that fence has got to be settled somehow."

"It must be fought out," said Nibs.

"Of course it must," replied Nobs.

"But that means that we must get our backs up," they said in one breath.

"All right," said Rover. "If it must be, let me give you a fine scheme for holding them up. There are two iron spikes with round knobs on them just over here on this side of the yard. You both jump on these, let your feet hang down on either side, and the iron will hold your backs up."

"Clever! Clever!" said they both.

But when they went to get down neither could move. They couldn't lift up nor move to the side, for the wall was too narrow. Rover had them.

"Help! Help!" they cried.

"On one condition," said Rover.

"We grant it!"

"That you stop this nightly row."

"Agreed!" they said. And Rover called the maid, who removed them.—Atlanta Constitution.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

HOW MR. SNAPPER FIXED THE STYLES

Old Mr. Snapper wandered leisurely out of the pond one bright spring morning and made for the back yard of the farmhouse. He had lain in the mud all winter and was now glad of the chance to get out and see something. While he was meditating in his slow fashion as to the probable crop of spring gnats he was startled by loud caterwauls.

He crawled to where the noise seemed to come from, and there, on the top of the chopping block, were Tom and Jerry in a most awful dispute.

"It ought to be six inches, and you know it, you horrid thing," said Tom.

"No, sir, it oughtn't to be but five. That's the style at Newport, and I don't care what you say!" yelled Jerry.

"They're quarreling about the length of their tails, I do believe," said Snapper to himself. "Did you ever hear anything so stupid? Well, I'll just fix the styles for them myself."

Tom was standing with hatchet raised to cut his tail off at the length he considered fashionable. Jerry's tail was hanging temptingly over the edge of the block. Snapper grabbed the hanging tail in his iron jaws.

HE MADE A LEAP BACKWARD.

"Wow! Kiyi! Fizz!" yelled Jerry, and, making a gigantic leap in the air, he knocked the hatchet out of Tom's paws, which, falling on Tom's luckless tail, cut it off about halfway up. He gave a yell of pain and made a leap backward. Jerry made a brave attempt to tear his tail free, but Snapper was too quick for him, and like a pair of scissors his jaws closed on his caudal appendage and severed it completely.

"Oh, oh! What shall we do?" sobbed both kittens as they sat down and looked at their stumps of tails.

"Never mind," said Snapper, crawling up to where they sat. "They're both the same length now."

"That's so. We hadn't thought of that," they said and went on their way sorrowfully.—Worcester Post.

THE GINGER JAR.

After-Dinner Talk.

"Your'e not on the level, if you are flat," said the spoon.

"Well, I'm not half so silly as you are old Spoony," replied the dish.

"If you folks are going to argue, I can give you a few points," said the fork.

"And if you don't quit it, I'll cut your acquaintance," said the knife.

Just then the bired girl came around to clean off the table and they all went into the tureen together,

"I couldn't see anything in the betting ring but Basswood Club, Victoria Club, Squeezem Club, Upanatem Club and so on. Why do they have so many clubs?" asked the man who went with his wife.

"They use 'em to take the people's money away with," replied the man who was covered with black and blue spots.

The World's Fair.

If nobody ever did anything scandalous, what would all the people have to talk about?

A man is likely to discover after a while that his wife was too much of a talker, even when she only said "yes" to him.

When a man pawns his watch to take a girl to the theater he is certainly showing a sacrificing devotion,

A woman would be ashamed to lose her head unless she knew her hat was on straight at the time.

The reason bald-headed men are able to get as far as the front row is that their wives have lost their hold on them.

"How Can Things be on the Level When the World is Round."

It is the name of a very popular motto song and chorus which is now being sung with immense success everywhere in the best theatres in the land.

CHORUS.

How can things be on the level, when the world is round
If everything was level, nothing crooked could be found.
Just turn it over and find the argument is sound
How can things be on the level, when the world is round.

The Wife's Share.

This question is often asked: Is a man's wife to be regarded on the business side as a partner with individual rights as well as joint liabilities, as a salaried official acting under orders and, with little or no responsibility or as a mendicant? In one or the other of these positions a wife must necessarily stand, and it is just as well that it should be clearly understood from the outset which of them she is to fill, remarks a writer in an English newspaper.

As a partner in the domestic firm she must have an equal right to draw her share of the profits, even though the other partner keeps the books and has the money passing through his hands.

Supposing, however, the husband is not to be convinced of the strict justice of this theory, the wife has a strong plea in reserve.

"When my wife asks me for money I give it to her," says one husband. Why should the wife have to ask for what is already her due? A man earns his wages; he will not have to ask, and his employer can entertain no feeling of "giving."

Only long and patient observation can enable any mere man to understand the continual and unjust humiliation suffered by multitudes of admirable women—the pinching and contriving and patient enduring they will undergo because of this perpetual ordeal of "asking" their husbands for money. The husband may be the best natured man living; the wife may know that asking means receiving, but that which annoys her is the asking itself.

In many cases the money is given as an "allowance," but in that case the word is still one which implies a favor given and received. It is not an "allowance" properly speaking, but is simply her share of the income.

He Does Go Round Buttin'.

At a dinner recently given in London an American actor proposed the conundrum, "What goes round a button?" After the problem had been given up by the party he gave the answer, "A goat." There was a moment's silence.

Finally one of the women spoke up. "Why," she said in a puzzled tone, "I didn't know they ate buttons."—Harper's Weekly.

AWFUL OUTLOOK IN MACEDONIA.

Washington, Nov. 26.—A story of sickness, hunger and starvation, has come to the State department from Mr. Norton, the American consul at Harput, in a report upon the condition of the Sassun population in the Mush district. The consul says of the 10,000 survivors of the recent massacre few have saved anything but their lives. Nearly every house in the regent was ransacked and burned.

Extracts from the report were made public at the state department Friday in hope that the sad story may bring relief to the unfortunate Sassuns.

"Worst of all," Mr. Norton says, "their flocks and herds, practically the only source of food, raiment and income, were swept away. These unfortunates, after receiving for a short period, an allowance from the government of one cent. per capita and per diem for subsistence, are now without food and without a prospect of food for the coming winter. The diseases usually following upon fright, exposure, exhaustion and insufficient food are rapidly becoming epidemic especially among the children.

BURNED BUILDINGS RESTORED.

Progress has been made in restoring the burned dwellings, so that probably the question of a bare shelter before the advent of winter will be settled in most cases. Sufficient firewood can also be secured without great difficulty.

"There remains the three vital questions of warm clothing, of bedding, of food, for which no provision is made. The situation is practically identical with that with many parts of Macedonia, twelve months ago, although, while the number involved is less, the remoteness from the sea coast and the greater severity of the climate increase the danger of widespread suffering and mortality.

"The helplessness of this mountain folk in their need is heightened by the enforcement of administrative measures which prevent from leaving their ruined village and seeking assistance or work in more favored localities.

"The case is one appealing most strongly to the sympathies of the benovolent. Unless aid is furnished promptly, few may be left to relate it. The region is bare and desolate. Clothing, blankets and food must be brought from the outside, before the approaches to the mountains are blocked by snow.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life,

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions.

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its reading matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the Republican Job Printing Department.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—This is Court week.

—Sherman Rodgers, of Tyrone, killed a 22 lb turkey on Bald Eagle ridge near Vail the day before Thanksgiving.

—A very good place to find a young ladys hand, when young men are seeking it is in the dishpan, washing dishes for mother.

—Grace, the little four year old daughter of Mr, and Mrs. Samuel Hazel of East Lamb street, fell on Tuesday and broke her collar bone

—Mrs. R. S. Brouse entertained a large party of lady friends at her home on South Thomas street Friday evening. It was a very pleasant and enjoyable social gathering.

—Miss Martha Barnhart, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Barnhart of North Thomas street, had a slight operation performed Friday, She was suffering from a growth on the inside of her nose.

—The Pennsylvania State College played an exciting game of foot ball at Pittsburg Thanksgiving Day with the Western University of Pennsylvania. The game ended in a score 22 to 5 in favor of the University.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Co., has had several thousand locust trees planted on land near Duncannon and are now having a similar number planted near Newport, to be used in later years for ties.

—Charles Corse, one of the oldest practitioners at the Clinton county bar, died suddenly Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at his home in Lock Haven. His death was due to acute indigestion and he had only been ill a few days.

Married—Mr. Elmer Justice and Miss Laura Bryan, of this place, were united in marriage Thanksgiving at 8 o'clock at the United Brethren parsonage by Rev. A. Davidson. The bride is the daughter of S. W. Bryan of North Spring street.

—Mrs. Emory Brungart died at Hughesville, interment being made Tuesday. She was the daughter of Jesse Mauck, deceased, and was raised in Millheim, where for a time she was engaged in the millinery business. The husband and two children survive.

—Thirteen dead. over 200 seriously injured, is the record of the foot ball season which ended Thursday, so far as is known. Of the injured many are permanently injured; some will die as a result of their injuries and many more will go through life badly disfigured.

—Some idea of the importance of the Bituminous Coal interests of Clearfield county may be gathered from the annual report of the Pennsylvania State Bureau of statistics which gives the number of mines in said county as 168, and the number net tons of coal shipped in 1903 at 7,474,709.

—Union services were held in the Presbyterian church on Thanksgiving Day morning at 10:30 o'clock and were well attended. An excellent program was carried out and Rev. J. A. Wood, Jr., pastor of the Methodist church preached an eloquent sermon appropriate to the occasion.

—More than one-half the school districts in Pennsylvania have been paid their share of the school fund for the fiscal year ending May 31st next. State Treasurer Mathues expects to pay all of them during the present year. The exact amount paid to the schools is $2,381,358, leaving less than $2,000,000 due them. Of the entire appropriation of $5,500,000 for this year the public schools proper will get $5,212,500; the normal schools, $237,500, and the township high schools, $50,000.

—Since the election most of our merchants have gotten down to business and are determined to push ahead for their share of trade. By reading the advertisements in our columns you will learn where to buy the best goods at the lowest prices. The live business men who advertises buy their goods right and sell right. They are up-to date and entitled to your patronage, and they usually get it, for the volume of their trade is so much greater than the merchant who don't advertise, that they can easily undersell them.

—The shoemaker, Douglas, who has pocketed Massachusetts, and given the Republicans a double welt, is said by Senator Lodge to be "comparatively unknown." This means that he is not a bon vivant; that he doesn't belong to the Somerset Club; that he isn't in the Back Bay set; that he doesn't live on Beacon street; that his ancestors did not come over in the Mayflower, or burn witches; that he is not a graduate of Harvard or an orator of Faneuil Hall, and that he doesn't worship the sacred codfish. He s merely an uncommon common man.

—It looked a little like winter on Sunday.

—The season for hunting deer closed Wednesday Nov. 30.

—Charles Rine, the cigar dealer, who has been on the sick list for sometime is we are glad to say slowly improving.

—Mr. John Sharp, superintendent of the Shirt factory, has moved his family from Mrs. Annie Caswell's property on North Penn street to Prof. John Harrison's house on East Bishop street.

—Dr. James H. Dobbins has very kindly given the use of the front of his office in Sands block on High street to the Salvation Army to hold their Country Store in, during the 1st week of December.

—A four-year-old child of Andrew Breon, near town, was badly bitten by a large dog on Saturday last. The dog was eating some bones when the child approached it. Dr. Fisher, of Zion, was sent for Monday and after making an examinatien said blood poisoning has set in and the child is in a precarious condition.

—Only one more month until the close of the Bellefonte Republican Popular Employee contest. It is a close fight and will wax warm from now. Every dollar paid for job work or subscriptions counts 50 votes for your favorite candidate if paid between December 1st and close of contest.

—A boy named Can left the home of his aunt in Allegheny for the home of his father in Danville, Pa., about ten days ago and has not been heard of since. He has dark curly hair, dark eyes and light complexion. A postal card from his father at Danville says any information as to the boy's whereabouts will be gratefully received. The name or the age of the boy is not given.

—The circulation of the Bellefonte Republican is now 2,000 each issue. A fair average gives five readers to each paper published. That being the case 10,000 people read the Bellefonte Republican every week. Local advertisers would therefore find the Republican a profitable medium for their holiday advertising. Include it in your list this year and you will not regret it.

—Helen Chambers, the little nine year old daughter of Col. E. R. Chambers, of Bellefonte received Wednesday a very handsome Shetland pony, a present from Major Charles Miller, of Franklin. Gen Miller is the Commander of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, and is a very kind and agreeable gentleman. In addition to this he is reported to be worth about fifteen or sixteen millions of dollars. This is a mark of friendship toward Col. and Mrs. Chambers that is very much appreciated, and it is needless to say that little Helen is very happy over her present.

—There are some women who seem to be perennially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children and the color in her mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of her matronly health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of women is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" dries the debillitating drains, heals ulceration and inflammation, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their beauty have been made "robust and rosy cheeked" by the use of this marvelous medicine.

—The forthcoming President's message is now a matter of consideration at the White House as well as of speculation in the community. Much of it can be easily forecast. It will not be a very long message. The order has been given to the chiefs of bureaus to make their reports short and to the point. Naturally the President will refer with satisfaction to the fact that many of his invitations to the nations to join in a second peace conference at the Hague have been accepted. The progress of the negotiations for arbitration treaties will be mentioned with satisfaction. Other topics can be justly mentioned with pride are the peaceful relations America sustains with all the nations of the world; the domestic prosperity which has prevailed during the past year; the progress of the preliminary work upon the Panama canal; the peace which prevails in the Philippines and the development of that country; the success of the World's Fair at St. Louis the last installment of the loan of $5,600,000 having been recouped into the Treasury. the work accomplished and proposed in matters of irrigation and and forestry; the proposed revision of the tariff; the necessity which exists for building a great navy; the need of a change in the laws relating to the inspection of steamboats; the recent army maneuvers at Manassas; regret at the continuance of the war in the East, and a summary of the reports from various departments.

Wedding of Miss Gertie Irvin.

Thursday afternoon of last week, Miss Gertie Irvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wash Irvin of Bellefonte was married in St. Louis, and with the marriage there is a tinge of a little romance. Three years ago Miss Gertie spent the winter with friends in Kansas City, Mo., and while there became acquainted with Hayword Boone, a direct descendent of the famous Daniel Boone. He was a very pleasant and industrious young man and before Miss Gertie returned to Bellefonte they decided that their love for each other was mutual and so they were engaged. Since that time they had been corresponding with each other. It seems that death occurred recently in the family of the groom which prevented him from coming to Bellefonte and claiming his bride. So arrangements were made whereby she should go to St. Louis and there in a quiet way have the nuptial knot tied.

A letter from the now Mrs Boone to her mother on Saturday states that she arrived in St. Louis on Thursday morning where she met her fiance at the Lacled hotel and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock they were married by a Methodist minister. After taking in the many sights at the World's Fair they left for Clinton, Ky., where the groom is a successful business man, having a large stationery store, and where they will make their future home.

Miss Gertie is one of Bellefonte's pretty and attractive young ladies and, being a seamstress, is well and favorably known in the homes of this place. Her friends here wish for her much happiness.

A Bad Mix-Up.

Sometime last January Mich Young of this place, and Mrs. Isaac Sager suddenly disappeared and rumor was current at the time that they had run away together. No especial effort was made to apprehend either until the night before election when they reappeared together. Mr. Sager at once had a warrant sworn out for the arrest of Young. The latter was apprehended and was given a hearing before Justice Keichline last Saturday night When Young was brought into the justice's office he was searched and a big revolver and a black-jack were found on him Mrs. Sager was also searched and a big revolver found on her.

At the hearing it developed that Young and Mrs. Sager were both at the same lumber camp in the Allegheny mountains where the woman is doing the cooking for the lumbermen. After hearing all the evidence Young was held in $500 bail for trial at the November term of court. Mrs. Sager was detained and, on Monday, again departed for the lumber camp in the Alleghenies.

Two Operations.

Last week Misses Mona Struble and Ella Alters were admitted to the Bellefonte hospital where each underwent an operation for phosphoric necrosis, a disease of the jaw-bone caused by working in the phosphorous at the match works where Miss Struble had been employed prior to going with the Pennsylvania telephone company as substitute operator and where Miss Alters has been working for some time past.

Phosphoric necrosis is caused by the phosphorous getting into a hollow or decayed tooth. Medical works speak of it as a very rare disease and one, once firmly rooted very hard to combat. The operations on Miss Struble and Miss Alters were performed by dentist J. J. Kilpatrick, assisted by Dr. Feidt. At this writing both patients are getting along splendidly and good hopes for a speedy and permanent recovery are entertained.

Death of Mrs. J. Frank Bible.

Although the death of Mrs. J. Frank Bible, of Centre Hill, was not unexpected, the news cast a gloom over the entire community. She was a young woman, well thought of by all her neighbors and acquaintances, and was a devoted wife and mother of a child aged about two years.

Mrs. Bible was stricken with consumption and was ill ever since early in the fall. Death came Sunday night, Nov. 20th.

Interment was made in the Sprucetown cemetery, Wednesday morning, Rev. G. W. McIlnay, of the Methodist church, officiating.

Mrs. Bible was a daughter of Mrs. Eliza Smith, of Centre Hill, and was aged twenty-eight years and eight months.

Reduced Rates to Erie.

For the benefit of those desiring to attend the meeting of the Pennsylvania State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, to be held at Erie, Dec. 13 to 16, the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., will sell round-trip tickets to Erie from all stations on its lines in the State of Pennsylvania, Dec. 12 to 15, good to return until Dec. 17, inclusive, at reduced rates (minimum rate, 25 cents)

—New goods now arriving. Prunes peaches, apricots, raisins, figs—all fine goods. Our line of new canned peas and corn open up fine. The Refugee stringless beans from the Howard Canning Co. are very fine. Sechler & Co.

A New Diocese.

(Saturday's Daily News.)

On Tuesday next the new diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church will be organized at Lancaster, when representatives of all churches will meet, organize, elect a new bishop and arrange for the installation of the new see.

The new diocese to be organized and for which a new bishop is to be chosen, embraces the archdeaconries of Harrisburg and Williamsport and includes the counties of Lancaster, Dauphin, Cumberland, York, Adams, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Bedford, Blair, Juniata, Perry, Mifflin, Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Centre, Clinton, Montour, Columbia, Lycoming, Sullivan, Potter and Tioga.

According to the statement made by Bishop Talbot, in his address to the convention in June, the number of communicants in the new diocese is 7,887, contained in fifty-five parishes and missions, served by a like number of clergymen. This makes the new diocese in point of communicants stronger by nearly 3,000 than was the diocese in Pennsylvania at the date of its organization thirty-three years ago

The delegates to the meeting will arrive in Lancaster on Tuesday afternoon and will affect an organization on that evening. On Wednesday the bishop will be elected. Regarding the choice of a name for the new diocese, there is considerable difference of opinion.

State Allots Money to Township Schools.

Fifty thousand dollars will be distributed among the 163 township high schools in Pennsylvania during the next sixty days by State Treasurer Mathues out of the appropriation made for the support of these schools by the last Legislature.

The allotment has just been made by State Superintendent of Public Instructions Schaeffer, and the schools will be paid as soon as the remaining 800 districts have received their share of the regular appropriation of $5,500,000.

The appropriation of $50,000 is sufficient to allow these schools only 60 per cent. of the amount to which they are entitled. The first grade schools receive $800; second grade, $600 and third grade $400.

Superintendent Schaeffer says that the appropriation is sufficient to pay the first grade schools $480; second grade $360; third grade, $240. There are nine first grade, fifty-three second grade and 101 third grade township high schools in the state.

The following Centre county schools are to receive a slice of this appropriation: Ferguson, Haines, Liberty and Worth $240 each; Walker $360.

Death of Mrs. Katharine F. Bailey.

Mrs, Katharine F. Bailey died. Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at Willowbank house of heart failure. Her maiden name was Katharine Bryan and she was the daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Bryan. She was born at Bellwood 58 years ago.

She is survived by two sons, Jas. G., of Youngstown, Ohio, and Harry, of Altoona. She also leaves her aged mother who resides at Altoona and the following brothers and sisters: John, of Bellefonte; Wesley, Potter, Clara and Jennie, of Altoona.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of her brother, John H. Bryan on Spring street. Rev A. Davidson, of the United Brethren church, officiating, assisted by the officers of the Salvation Army.

Interment in the Union cemetery.

Funeral of R. M. Magee.

The funeral of the late R. M. Magee, who died in Philadelphia Tuesday afternoon, of apoplexy, and whose remains arrived in Bellefonte Saturday was held from the Reformed church at eleven o'clock. Rev. Ambrose Schmidt, pastor of the church, conducted the services and preached the funeral sermon. Dr. William Laurie, pastor of the Presbyterian church and a close friend of the deceased, delivered an address from a personal standpoint. Miss Ella Twitmire sang the very touching solo "The Isle of Somewhere."

The casket bearers were William C. Heinle, P. Gray Meek, D. F. Fortney, H. Y. Stitzer, Jared Harper and John P. Harris.

Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

Hospital News.

Word from the Bellefonte hospital Wednesday is to the effect that both Joseph L. Neff and William Daley, two patients who are victims of railroad accidents, are getting along very nicely, although not out of danger. Mr. Daley has had both legs amputated. The left one was amputated Sunday morning and he recovered from the effects of the operation very nicely.

Parks—Murray.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of the groom's brother, Edward L. Parks, of Tyrone, last Wednesday, when Harry J. Parks, of Tyrone, formerly of this county, and Miss Melissa Murray, of Snow Shoe Intersection, were united in marriage by the Rev. Geo. T. Gunter. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present to witness the ceremony.

Prof. John D. Meyer, principal of the Bellefonte High school, returned home this week from a visit to his sister in South Carolina. He brought home a large number of specimens of holly, mistletoe and cotton growing on the stock which he presented to the students of the High school. It was a great object lesson to his pupils and quite thoughtful of him to remember them in that way.

Rev. W. O. Wisner, president of the Christian college, Canton, China, has been in this country this fall seeking a school in which to have his two children educated. After considerable personal investigation he has selected the Bellefonte Academy. They will arrive today. This is quite a compliment to the Academy. Mr. and Mrs. Wisner returns to their work in China the first of the year.

COUNTRY SALE

Will be Held by the Salvation Army First Week in December.

In consideration of the winter season the Salvation Army are arranging to have a Country Sale the first week in December, in the interest of their local social and relief work. They are anxious to do something for the poor with the public's help. Capt. Sechler has issued a statement stating that they intend to sell second hand clothing, shoes, furniture etc., at a nominal price. It will serve a two-fold object viz: Making the poor feel more self supporting and giving them an opportunity of coming in closer touch with the class which they are endeavoring to help, both socially and spiritually. Therefore they solicit contributions of any of the following articles: Fruit, flowers, canned goods, vegetables, fish, meat, chickens, live stock, corn, flour, wheat, potatoes, condensed milk, bread, crackers, cheese, tea, coffee, cocoa, books, pictures, jewelry, shoes, coal, wood, chairs, sheets, blankets, cutlery, tools, furniture, (new or used) clothing (new or second hand.)

Largest Engine in the World.

The largest locomotive in the world is to be placed on the Connellsville Division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The Mallet type of engine, built expressly for the Baltimore and Ohio exhibits at the World's Fair, will be brought to the local division as soon as the Exposition closes and be used in pushing heavy freight trains up the Sand Patch Hill, over the crest of the Allegheny mountains. When in working order it weighs 223,500 and the weight of the tender filled with coal and water is 143,000 pounds.

Arrangements have been made to have Christian Smith, the man who ran the first locomotive over the Connellsville Division, take out the engine on its first trip, but Smith died last week at his home, New Cumberland, aged 93.

—R. B. Taylor has taken the agency for the celebrated "Woodland" coal, the finest article of coal on the market today. John W. Cook was formerly owner of this coal mine and exclusive seller of their coal in Bellefonte. No doubt those who have used this coal in the past will be glad of the opportunity to use it again.
